Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act to extend the acts to promote agriculture," was read the third time.

Resolved, That the bill do pass.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

A message from the Governor was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
Albany, April 5, 1845. }

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

I have this day approved and signed the bill entitled "An act in relation to the circuit court in and for the city and county of New-York."

SILAS WRIGHT.

On motion of Mr. Hannum, by unanimous consent,

Resolved, That the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Geddes,'" be taken from the general orders, and referred to the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to report complete.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Bailey, from the select committee to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to provide for laying out and constructing a road through the Highlands, from Croton bridge in the county of Westchester, to Fishkill landing in Dutchess county," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Thompson, from the committee on charitable and religious societies, to which was referred the petition of sundry citizens of the city of New-York, for the passage of an act relative to the rights of pewholders, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Thompson accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to provide for the incorporation of religious societies,' passed April 5th, 1813;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the question of agreeing to the report of the committee of the whole, on the engrossed bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to increase the capital of the Common School Fund."

The question recurred on agreeing to the motion made by Mr. C. F. Crosby, to strike out of the first section of the said bill all after the words "School fund."

Debates were had thereon; when

Mr. Chase called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee of the whole in their report on the said bill, and it was determined in the negative.

A message from the Senate, with the bill therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to authorise and require the trustees of joint school district number fourteen of Clay and Cicero to levy and collect a tax for the relief of Hiram M. Wright and Joseph Rector," without amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Governor.

A message from the Senate, with the bill therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the New-York Institution for the Blind," with the amendment thereto therewith delivered.

The said amendment having been read,

Ordered, That the said bill and amendments be referred to the committee on charitable and religious societies.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Hine, from the select committee to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to provide for building a bridge across the Walkill at New-Paltz village," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and made sundry amendments thereto, and saw no reason why the said amended bill should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said amendments be engrossed, and the bill have its third reading.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Patrick Fitzsimmons and James Brady;" on the bill entitled "An act authorising the board of supervisors of the counties of Madison and Dutchess to restore the distinction between county and town poor," and on the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Hudson Orphan and Relief Association;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Garretson, from the said committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Patrick Fitzsimmons and James Brady," and asked for leave to sit again.

Mr. Danforth moved that the said bill be recommitted to the committee on grievances, and retain its priority on the general orders.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Danforth, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Garretson, from the same committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act authorising the board of supervisors of the counties of Madison and Dutchess to restore the distinction between county and town poor," and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

Mr. Garretson, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Hudson Orphan and Relief Association," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for third reading.

Mr. Carpenter, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to prevent the racing and trotting of horses on the Albany and Troy macadamized road, and for other purposes;" the bill entitled "An act to erect the town of Ossinning in the county of Westchester;" the bill entitled "An act concerning the district attorney in the county of Ulster;" the bill entitled "An act to authorise a tax to be levied in the town of Potsdam, to build a town-house;" the bill entitled "An act to change the name of the village of Fairport to that of Horseheads;" the bill entitled "An act to amend the Revised Statutes, relative to procuring abortions;" the bill entitled "An act concerning the Congregational Society in the town of Spencer;" the bill entitled "An act for the more effectual improvement of public highways;" the bill entitled "An act authorising Ira Fowler and Alfred Goodwin to continue a ferry across the Seneca lake," and the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Fire Department of the village of West-Troy," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the American and Foreign Bible Society;" on the bill entitled "An act to amend the charter of the village of Cazenovia," and on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Orrin Tyler and others;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and announced that the hour of half past one o'clock in the afternoon had arrived.

Whereupon,

The House took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK, P. M.

The House again met.

The Chair announced the appointment of a select committee on the several bills relative to the reduction of county and town expenses, to consist of Mr. Hine, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Harris, Mr. Hazelton, Mr. Danforth, Mr. M-Key, Mr. R. L. Stevenson and Mr. Bush.

The House then resumed, in committee of the whole, the consideration of the several bills which were before the said committee at the time of taking the recess; and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Bloss, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the American and Foreign Bible Society," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Bloss, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Orrin Tyler and others," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Bloss, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act to amend the charter of the village of Cazenovia," and agreed to the same without amendment; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to extend the charter of the Commercial Bank of the city of Albany;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Chase, from the said committee, reported progress, and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Sarah Combs, widow of John Combs;" on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of James Spraker," and on the bill entitled "An act to amend the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Bath in the county of Steuben;'" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Russell, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Sarah Combs, widow of John Combs," and agreed to the same without amendment; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Russell, from the same committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of James Spraker," and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

Mr. Russell, from the same committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act to amend the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Bath in the county of Steuben,'" and asked for leave to sit again.

On motion of Mr. Harris,

Ordered, That the said bill be referred to the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to report the same complete.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Abial Payne;" on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Hezekiah Sage, John I. Walrath and Albert T. Dunham," and on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the Trust Fire Insurance Company in the city of New-York;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. D. Lee, from the said committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Abial Payne," and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

Mr. D. Lee, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Hezekiah Sage, John I. Walrath and Albert T. Dunham," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. D. Lee, from the same committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the Trust Fire Insurance Company in the city of New-York," and asked for and obtained leave to sit again.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of William Coleman, Abiel West and Joseph Taylor;" on the bill entitled "An act for the more particularly defining the limits and boundaries of the town of Ballston in the county of Saratoga," and on the bill entitled "An act for the equal distribution of the Literature fund;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Van Valkenburgh, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of William Coleman, Abiel West and Joseph Taylor," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the more particularly defining the limits and boundaries of the town of Ballston in the county of Saratoga," and agreed to the same without amendment; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the equal distribution of the Literature fund," and agreed to the same without amendment; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Hammond, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to prevent the racing and trotting of horses on any of the several roads, streets or avenues in the city of New-York, and for other purposes;" and the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Warwarsing and Rochester Turnpike Company," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

On motion of Mr. D. Lee, by unanimous consent,

Resolved, That the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to lay out a road from Newkirk's mills in the county of Fulton, to Piseco village in the county of Hamilton,' passed April 27, 1841," be taken from the general orders, and referred to the committee on roads and bridges, to report complete.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Raymond, from the committee on the erection and division of towns and counties, to which was referred the engrossed bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to connect lots nine and ten in Virgil, Cortland county, to Cortlandville in said county," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

The report of the Secretary of State and Surveyor General, relative to a tract of land purchased from the Indians by William Smith junior, and others, in the year 1761, was received and read.

[See Document No. 202.]

Ordered, That the said report be referred to the committee on grievances.

A communication from the Attorney General was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

STATE OF NEW-YORK, }
ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE. }

Albany, April 7, 1845.

HON. HORATIO SEYMOUR,
Speaker of the Assembly.

SIR,

I have the honor to transmit herewith my report, in obedience to a resolution of the Assembly of March 18th, 1845.

Respectfully your obedient servant,

J. VAN BUREN.

REPORT FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

STATE OF NEW-YORK, }
In Assembly, March 18, 1845. }

Resolved, That it be referred to the Attorney General to report to this House, whether or not, in his opinion, an act authorising the New-York and Erie Railroad Company to construct any portion of their road in Pennsylvania requires a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to this House : Also in relation to the State lien upon the said road, for his report thereon.

By Order of the Assembly,
 JAMES R. ROSE, Clerk.

In obedience to the above resolution, the Attorney General respectfully reports :

That he has been furnished with the proposed joint resolutions introduced into the Assembly by Mr. Morrison, on the twenty-fourth of February, 1845, and the act introduced by Mr. Van Valkenburgh on the eleventh of March, 1845 ; and he understands the foregoing resolution to require his opinion as to the constitutionality of the former, and as to the applicability of the ninth section of the seventh article of the Constitution of this State to the latter. The project of connecting the Hudson river with Lake Erie by means of a railroad, in whatever aspect it may be regarded, is of vast public importance, and it is most natural that it should have attracted to its support a large share of popular favor. The undersigned has examined the several measures submitted to him, designed as they no doubt are to facilitate the execution of this great enterprise, with a sincere desire to interpose no obstacle to its successful accomplishment ; and he respectfully submits to the Honorable the Assembly the results of this examination.

The original charter granted to the New-York and Erie Railroad Company was granted to them for the purpose of constructing a single, double or treble railway from the city of New-York to Lake Erie, commencing at the city of New-York, or at such point in its vicinity as should be most eligible and convenient therefor, and continuing said railroad through the southern tier of counties, by way of Owego in the county of Tioga, to the shore of Lake Erie, &c. (See Session Laws 1832, chap. 224, § 1.) By the sixth section of the charter, it was provided that the company should first construct, lay down and complete one line or track from the city of New-York, or from some point on the western shore of the Hudson river, in the said southern tier of counties, unto Lake Erie, and carry passengers or materials upon it, before building a second track. By the twelfth section, it was provided that the corporation should not, at any point, connect the said railway or ways with any railroad either of the State of Pennsylvania or New-Jersey, or leading into either of said States, without the consent of the Legislature of this State, on pain of forfeiting their charter. And by the seventeenth section, it was provided as follows : " It shall be lawful for the said corporation to unite with any other railroad company, already incorporated, upon the route of said road through said southern tier of counties, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the directors of said companies, in making a continuous railroad from New-York to Lake Erie, at all times, however, confining the route of said road to said southern tier of counties." A simple enumeration of these various provisions suffices to show that a primary object in granting this charter was to secure the erection of a continuous line of railroad through the southern tier of counties from the Hudson river to Lake Erie, and a glance at the map will disclose the large number of meritorious and sequestered counties interested in the prosecution of this work. The counties of Sullivan, Delaware, Otsego and Chenango were as deeply solicitous for the granting of this charter, and were entitled as confidently to expect great benefits from it, as any other counties in the southern tier. The several sections, therefore, which were intended to secure a continuous line of road through that tier of counties, and which only allowed a connection with other roads confined to the same tier, were not only a part, but a most essential and important part of the charter, and must have contributed much to its being granted.

The joint resolutions of Mr. Morrison are entitled "Joint Resolutions, authorising the New-York and Erie Railroad to change their route." They propose to authorise the road to be run into the State of Pennsylvania for sixteen miles, nearly parallel to the southern line of the county of Sullivan, and then to be continued along the border of said county till it passes the county limit. They further propose that the line of road shall leave this State opposite the counties of Delaware, Otsego and Chenango, and be continued for twenty-eight miles in the State of Pennsylvania; and this proposed to be done by a joint resolution of the two Houses, which is claimed to be a grant of the consent of the Legislature of the State that this road may connect with the railroads of Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, or roads leading into either of said States, as required in the twelfth section of the charter. In the opinion of the Attorney General, the twelfth section only applies to cases where the company desire to connect their road at any point in the established route with roads of Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, or roads leading into those States, without interrupting the continuous line of railroad through the southern tier of counties of this State; or, in other words, as it is most obvious that the intention of the Legislature was to secure to the city of New-York and other cities and villages in our own State, exclusively, the commercial advantages of this line of communication, they forbid the company to connect their road at any point even with roads leading into other States, without the consent of the Legislature. But it seems to the undersigned it never could have been intended that when such connection was formed, it should supersede and destroy the great leading object of the charter, to wit, the erection of a continuous line of railroad from the Hudson river to Lake Erie, the route of which should be confined to the southern tier of counties in this State. The consent given by the joint resolutions of Mr. Morrison, therefore, is not the consent mentioned in the twelfth section of the act.

The Attorney General appreciates the great learning of the written opinions furnished to him, and the able arguments delivered on the floor of the House, which seek to establish the position that the consent required by the twelfth section may be given by concurrent resolution. But he is clearly of opinion that the joint resolutions submitted to him directly conflict with the main object of the charter, repeal the seventeenth section, and are such an alteration of a body corporate as can only be constitutionally effected through a law having the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature.

The remaining inquiry, if the undersigned correctly understands the resolution of the House, is whether the bill introduced by Mr. Van Valkenburgh is subject to the restrictions of section 9, article 7, of the Constitution of this State. This section is in the following words : "The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature shall be requisite to every bill appropriating the public monies or property for local or private purposes, or creating, continuing, altering or renewing any body politic or corporate." The language of the section, in regard to bodies politic or corporate, would seem intended to reach every possible modification of a charter that a corporation could seek at the hands of the Legislature. It should be construed in its plain and ordinary signification, such as would be most likely to be given to it by the great mass of those for whom it was framed and by whom it was adopted. The corporation called "The New-York and Erie Railroad Company," was created by the act of 1832, already referred to ; and if it be true as is contended, that none of the subsequent acts have altered the corporation, then the proper mode of testing this bill is to compare its provisions with those of that act. By a reference to sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 9 and 16 of the original charter, it will be seen when and within what time certain sections of the road were to be completed ; what amounts of money were to be expended thereon ; what was to be the amount of capital stock ; how and when subscribed, and when paid ; and what were the general powers and duties of the corporation. The bill now before the Assembly, and submitted to the undersigned, in its first four sections, essentially alters most of these provisions of the original charter. It authorises an additional subscription of three million dollars ; and on payment of twenty-five per cent of such subscription, empowers the company, by the issue of bonds, to mortgage the road to the extent of $3,000,000, for the purpose of raising money to construct the road. It authorises these bonds to be issued by the company, and makes them liens on the road, prior to that of the State, and it gives the bondholders the same remedies against the road as is by law given to the mortgagees of real estate. It necessarily waives all the forfeitures that have occurred by the neglect to comply with the original requirements of the charter. The undersigned does not propose to examine minutely and to contrast the provisions of the two bills. If it is not obvious from a perusal of them that the last is a bill which alters the corporation created by the first, no reasoning of his could make it apparent. In the opinion of the Attorney General, the bill in question continues, alters and renews the New-York and Erie Railroad Corporation, and therefore requires the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature to its passage.

It is probably true that precedents may be found for the passage of a bill similar to this by a majority of a quorum of both Houses. The members of the Legislature will, of course, give all the weight to these precedents which, in their opinion, they deserve. The undersigned does not feel at liberty, when called upon to construe the Constitution as it is, to be governed by precedent. The question of the constitutional power of Congress to charter a Bank of the United States was, previous to 1836, decided in favor of the power by several congressional acts, by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, and by the approval of chief magistrates, eminent for their learning, purity and patriotism; yet a subsequent President, equally distinguished, with the vigor and courage and devotion to popular rights that have illustrated his civil and military career, did not hesitate to avow his belief of the unconstitutionality of the measure, to refuse his sanction to an act of incorporation, and to appeal to the people for their judgment upon him and it. The result is believed to be, that at this day the Executive of the United States, a majority of both branches of the National Legislature, the Supreme Court of the United States, and a majority of the American people, agree in the opinion that the Constitution does not warrant the creation by Congress of a national bank. If precedent, therefore, in its most commanding shape, could alter a written constitution, this would seem to have been a case where it must prevail; and yet it will be observed that it could not offer even a serious obstacle to the determination of those living under the Constitution and by it, to prefer its simple terms to the glosses of interpretation or the invasions of precedent.

Those arraigned for a violation of the law never plead precedents in extenuation or excuse, although they occur every day; and it is certainly as important that one violation of the Constitution should not be urged as a warrant for another. Nor can we shelter ourselves from responsibility for our own conduct, by interposing the shield of past legislation, or invoking the weight of other authority, however pure, high-minded or patriotic these legislators or authors may have been. We are sworn to support the Constitution. With all the respect that the undersigned feels for the opinions of other and far abler men than himself; with all the delicacy that is inseparable from differing with them, his understanding of his oath and of his duty leaves him no discretion. Those whose servants we are, will hold the present living, acting generation, responsible for what is done, and will insist that the great charter of their rights shall be acted under as it is, and not as it has been held to be.

The bill before the House also proposes, in its fifth section, to release the claim of the State for the repayment of the $3,000,000 loaned to the company in 1836, unless the State shall choose to purchase the road within a stated period of the company, and pay them all the monies expended by them for construction, repairs, permanent fixtures, and "otherwise for the purpose of said road," with seven per cent interest. At the close of the fifth section, it is provided that no such purchase by the State shall affect the lien of the bonds issued in pursuance of this act; and by previous sections, the lien of the State on the road is postponed to the lien of said bonds. The practical result of this bill, therefore, if the undersigned correctly understands it, is to authorise the company to raise three million dollars on a pledge of the road ; to postpone the State lien to such pledge ; to authorise the expenditure of the money raised upon the construction of the road, and then to release the State lien altogether, unless the State, after a single track is constructed from the Hudson river to Lake Erie, should choose to reimburse the company all the money expended on the road, and take the road subject to the three million mortgage authorised by this act. For instance, if the company have already expended four and a half million dollars, and should raise three million dollars more under this act, and expend it upon the road, the State would, at the time limited, pay the company seven and a half million dollars and interest, and take the road subject to a mortgage of three million dollars in the hands of the bondholders authorised by this act. This statement is made to render clear and intelligible the position which the Attorney General supposes may be safely assumed, to wit, that this bill contains a gift of three million of dollars to the New-York and Erie Railroad Company. Does the bill, then, in this view, require the assent of two-thirds of the members elect of each branch ? Is it an appropriation "of the public monies or property for local or private purposes ?" Those who contend that this is not an appropriation for local or private purposes, rely on the numerous acts of the Legislature authorising railroad companies to take the property of our citizens for the uses of their road, without the consent of the owner, and on making compensation. The courts of our State have declared these laws to be constitutional ; and, in doing so, have discussed the true meaning of the last clause of section 7, article 7 of our State Constitution, which is in these words, "nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation."

The question of the power of the Legislature to take the property of one citizen, and give it to others for the purpose of constructing a railroad, is believed to have first come before the courts of this State in 1831, in the case of Beekman vs. the Saratoga and Schenectady Railroad Company, reported in 3 Paige, 46. The Chancellor there decided as follows : "The eminent domain, the highest and most exact idea of "property, remains in the government, or in the aggregate body of the "people in their sovereign capacity ; and they have a right to resume "the possession of the property, in the manner directed by the constitution and laws of the State, whenever the public interest requires "it. This right of resumption may be exercised not only where the "safety, but also where the interests, or even the expediency of the "State is concerned ; or where the land is wanted for a road, canal, or "other public improvement. The only restriction upon this power, in "cases where the public or the inhabitants of any particular section of "the State have an interest in the contemplated improvement as citizens merely, is that the property shall not be taken for the public use "without just compensation to the owner, and in the mode prescribed "by law." He farther held that this right of eminent domain did not authorise the taking of the property of one man and giving it to another man, where compensation was made, unless the public interest would be in some way promoted by the transfer. "But," he says, "if the public interest can be in any way promoted by the taking of private property, it must rest in the wisdom of the legislature to determine whether the benefit to the public will be of sufficient importance to render it expedient for them to exercise the right of EMINENT DOMAIN, and to authorise an interference with the private rights of individuals for that purpose;" and he cites 2 Kent's Com. 340. The Chancellor then proceeds to show that it is no objection to the exercise of this right that the powers it confers and the benefits resulting from it are delegated to an incorporated company, if the public have an interest in, and enjoyment of, the use of the property taken. He instances the taking of private property for highways, turnpike roads, canals, basins, ferries, etc. etc., and considers them all as resting on the same footing.

The only other case which it is necessary to refer to, is that of Bloodgood vs. the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad Company, decided in the Supreme Court, and reported in 14 Wend. 54. Bloodgood brought an action of trespass against the railroad company, for entering upon his land, digging up the soil, etc. The company justified under their charter, which authorised them to enter upon land, make surveys, and use such lands as should be necessary for the purposes of their railroad, provided that all lands entered upon, taken possession of and used by the company, should be purchased and paid for in the manner pointed out in the act of incorporation. The land of Bloodgood had been entered upon and used, but was not, at the time suit was commenced, purchased or paid for. The main question in the case was, whether the proviso was a condition subsequent or precedent to the entry upon the land in the manner complained of. The Supreme Court held that the purchase and payment was a condition subsequent to the entry, and gave judgment for defendant. The Court of Errors (18 Wendell, 9,) held that the purchase and payment was a condition precedent to the right of entry and occupation, and reversed the judgment of the Supreme Court. This was the point decided. But a resolution was introduced, and passed by a vote of 17 to 3, to the effect (see 18 Wend. 77,) that the Legislature have the constitutional power to authorise the taking of private property for the purpose of making railroads or other public improvements of the like nature, whether such improvements be made by the State itself or through the medium of a corporation or joint stock company, on making ample provision for a just compensation for the property taken, to the owners thereof. Several of the members of the Court reaffirmed the doctrine that the Legislature, in taking private property and giving it to a railroad company, exercised the right of eminent domain; and one of them, Mr. Senator Tracy, in a very able and ingenious opinion, suggests great doubt as to the legislative power to exercise this right in behalf of a private company. The Court concurred in the view taken by the Chancellor, that the constitutional provision restricted this inherent right, so far as to compel just compensation to be made where private property was taken. A reference to the authorities cited by Mr. Tracy (page 58,) will show what is meant by the right of eminent domain, or, as it is sometimes called, the force of supereminent dominion. In simple language, it is a sovereign power to appropriate individual property to the necessities of the State. The degree and kind of necessity that calls for the exertion of the power, must, of course, be judged of by those who exert it. If such a power exists in this State, where is it lodged? In England it is vested in parliament, whose power and jurisdiction is described in 1 Black. Com. 160. "This being the place," he says, "where that absolute, despotic power, which must in all governments reside somewhere, is entrusted by the constitution of these kingdoms. All mischiefs and grievances, operations and remedies that transcend the ordinary course of the laws, are within the reach of this extraordinary tribunal." And after a graphic sketch of the power of parliament to regulate the succession to the crown, to alter and establish the religion of the land, to change the constitution and even itself, he concludes that "It can, in short, do every thing that is not naturally impossible, and therefore some have not scrupled to call its power by a figure rather too bold, the omnipotence of parliament. True it is, that what the parliament doth, no authority on earth can undo." To concede to such a body the right of eminent domain, would be no enlargement of their privileges. The Constitution of the United States (article 5 of the amendments) has the same provision as to taking private property for public use, and in the same words. If this is a restriction upon a pre-existing right of eminent domain, in what branch of the general government does the right rest? If the right exists, what is to prevent the legislature from taking the property of A and giving it to B? This is exactly what is done when land is taken from one citizen, and given to several others to construct a railroad upon.

It is true that the Legislature avow and act upon a belief that the public interest will be promoted by the change. The theory is to take the property of one individual and give it to several others, because they, in the judgment of the legislature, will apply it to more public uses. This would authorise the taking of the house of one, to make a hotel for another; the horses and wagon of one, to enable another to establish a line of public conveyances; the books of one, that another might keep a public library; the time-piece of one, that another might set it up for a town clock. In the case of Varick vs. Smith, 5 Paige, 159, the Chancellor suggests this safeguard to private rights: After saying that in England, perhaps, the omnipotence of parliament places their abuses of discretion beyond the reach of remedy, he adds, "But in a state which is governed by a written constitution, like ours, if the legislature should so far forget its duty and the natural rights of an individual as to take his private property and transfer it to another, where there was no foundation for a pretence that the public was to be benefited thereby, I should not hesitate to declare that such an abuse of the right of eminent domain was an infringement of the spirit of the Constitution, and therefore not within the general powers delegated by the people to the legislature. But while I deny to the legislative power the right thus to take private property for the mere purpose of transferring it to another, I admit that the two branches of the legislature, subject only to the qualified veto of the executive, are the sole judges as to the expediency of making police regulations interfering with the natural rights of our citizens, which regulations are not prohibited by the Constitution; and also as to the expediency of exercising the right of eminent domain for the purpose of making public improvements, either for the benefit of the inhabitants of the State generally, or of any particular section thereof." The difficulty that occurs to the undersigned is, that if this tremendous power is confided to legislative discretion, their will stands for a reason when they act. Even if they were called on by the courts to show a "foundation for a pretence," that they transferred the property of A to B with a view to benefit the public, the simple fact that the legislature did the deed would furnish such pretence. The rights of private property would thus be undefined and uncertain, the power of the legislature arbitrary and despotic, their discretion and not the written constitution would determine the rights of the citizen, and the spirit and genius of our institutions would be sacrificed. The undersigned believes that the provision as to taking private property for public use was intended to confine the taking to cases where the government, or its subordinate agents, or others under their direction and charge, enjoyed the possession and use; but there have been frequent legislative and judicial acts extending the power further than this, and, in his judgment, it would have been less dangerous to have stretched the term "public use" so as to cover a private railroad, than to have asserted an inherent power in the legislature, so slightly limited and restrained by the Constitution, and which may reach so far beyond the case it is intended to meet.

But even if it were conceded that the term "public use" in the seventh section of the seventh article, properly includes the uses of a railroad company, it by no means follows that an appropriation or gift of public monies to such a company is not a gift "for local or private purposes," within the meaning of the ninth section of the same article. It is believed that no judicial decision can be found, declaring that such an appropriation would not require a vote of two-thirds of the members elect of each branch of the legislature. It will be borne in mind that if the constitutional power of the legislature to take private property for use of a railroad company is denied, a unanimous vote of the legislature would not aid those who seek to establish the right; and there may have been something in the supposed necessities of the case to induce a conviction that the power existed. And again, that where private property is thus taken, the corporation is created by a two-third vote. There is no analogy, therefore, in the necessity or extent of the two questions. If the restrictions of the ninth section do not apply to a grant of money to railroad corporations, then a bare majority of a quorum of the two houses, with the assent of the executive, may give away any amount of the public monies to these corporations; and if the executive refuse his sanction, two-thirds of the members present may still effect the donation.

The question, therefore, now presented, is of immense public concern, and calls for serious and anxious consideration. If the fact that the transactions of a company are shared in by the public, and are deemed advantageous to many, takes from it the character of "a local or private purpose," then banks, insurance companies, manufacturing, forwarding and transportation companies, are entitled to the advantages of this construction. The whole treasure of the State is at the mercy of a majority of the members of the legislature, to be bestowed on these different companies, according to their discretion, or caprice, or judgment.

It will not be denied that the New-York and Erie railroad corporation is a private corporation. The opinion of Mr. Justice Story, in the case of the Dartmouth College vs. Woodward, 4 Wheaton, 468, 494, is conclusive on this point. "Strictly speaking," he says, "public corporations are such only as are founded by the government for public purposes; where the whole interests belong also to the government, such as towns, cities, counties; but a bank, whose stock is owned by private persons, is a private corporation, although it is erected by the government, and its objects and operations partake of a public nature. The same doctrine may be affirmed of insurance, bridge and turnpike companies."

The Civil Code of Louisiana, book 1, title 10, chapter 1, article 420, divides corporations into political and private, under which classification are ranged all corporations; and they are severally defined substantially as Judge Story defines them above.

This corporation, then, is clearly a private corporation. Are its purposes "local?"

A mere description of the route of the railroad would seem to show that it is, in the common acceptation of the term, a "local" work. But it is true that the Legislature have not acted on this strict signification of the term "local." The Erie and other canals, colleges and academies, if their mere location is to be regarded, might be deemed "local" in this view. The Legislature have chosen to connect with the fact of location, the idea of universal state benefit or direct government property; and where these were combined in behalf of a measure that was by position "local," they have not regarded the measure as coming within the prohibition of the Constitution. In these cases they have construed the term "local" to mean the reverse of "public."

The Attorney General would not be understood as insisting that laws thus passed by a majority vote are unconstitutional; but he is of opinion that it would be infinitely safer to apply the two-third restriction to those acts, which, from the universal favor with which they are regarded, could easily secure such an assent, than to make those cases precedents for holding a work like the Erie railroad to be other than "local."

Are the purposes of this company "private?" It has already been attempted to be shown that it is a private corporation. It is also composed of private persons. They have procured a charter for purposes of individual gain. It is true, a laudable object, and one which may accommodate a large portion of the public or whole people of the State, and even of the United States, is to be effected by the company. The same may be said of other incorporated companies heretofore alluded to. But does this differ from individual enterprises having the same or a similar design? There is nothing in the fact of their being associated or incorporated, that distinguishes them in this respect from other private citizens. All professional men, then, clergymen, physicians and lawyers, serve or claim to serve the public. Innkeepers, transporters of men and merchandize, merchants and traders, all profess the same object, and no doubt many of them accomplish it. If their advertisements are to be relied on, their almost exclusive object is to benefit all others but themselves ; and yet it is notorious that at the bottom of all these efforts in behalf of the public, lies the great principle of self-interest and private gain ; and so long as their dealings are fair and honorable, no objection can be taken to the principle.

But the question presents itself, Can the Legislature, by a majority vote, appropriate the public monies in aid of these public accommodations, when the profit of them is received by private citizens ?

The undersigned is unable to perceive any distinction in principle between the several cases before enumerated, and the one now under consideration : all are private purposes, and yet all may serve the public use ; and he does not hesitate to say, that, in his opinion, the donation of $3,000,000 proposed to be made by the bill submitted to him, is, within the meaning of the Constitution, an appropriation of public monies for private purposes, and cannot be made without the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature.

The results, then, to which the Attorney General has arrived in regard to the several questions which he understands to have been submitted to him, are, that in his opinion,

1. The joint resolutions of Mr. Morrison do not give "the consent of the Legislature," mentioned in the twelfth section of the New-York and Erie railroad charter.

2. That the alterations of the route of the railroad in the manner proposed in the joint resolutions, can only be effected by a bill having the assent which the ninth section of the seventh article of the Constitution prescribes.

3. That the bill submitted to him, entitled "An act in relation to the construction of the New-York and Erie railroad," contains, in its first four sections, provisions which "continue," "alter," and "renew" the body corporate called "The New-York and Erie Railroad Company," and therefore requires the constitutional assent above mentioned.

4. That the bill makes a donation to the New-York and Erie Railroad Company of three million dollars, and therefore appropriates that amount of public monies "for local" and "private purposes," within the meaning of article seven, section 9, and requires for its passage the assent prescribed in that section.

The Attorney General has had less reluctance in declaring these convictions which have been forced upon his mind from a careful examination of the several questions submitted to him, from the fact that the work which this company have undertaken, has, as he has already stated, excited a large share of public interest and favor. The region of country through which it passes, and which is chiefly interested in its completion, is inhabited by industrious, enterprising and patriotic citizens, who have shared equally in the public burdens, but sparingly in its benefits. And it would seem to be impossible, if the friends of the road are willing to entrust its construction to a private company, and if this company have done nothing to forfeit the confidence of the people or of the Legislature, that the assent which the Constitution requires could not be obtained to any rational and just measures that will ensure its completion. So noble an undertaking should not be stained by violations of the Constitution : so important a work should not be prosecuted under laws of even doubtful constitutionality ; and least of all should it be made a pioneer in encroachments on and invasions of the sacred charter of popular rights, when in its rear may and will follow many less meritorious projects.

All which is respectfully submitted,

J. VAN BUREN.

[See Document No. 204.]

On motion of Mr. Chase,

Ordered, That the said report be referred to the select committee having charge of the bill relative to the New-York and Erie railroad.

Ordered, That Mr. Frisbee have leave of absence for three days, Mr. J. Stevenson for three days, Mr. Van Valkenburgh for four days, Mr. E. Crosby for seven days, Mr. Tefft for seven days, Mr. Mersereau for seven days, and Mr. Jarvis for ten days.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Bloss, from the committee on charitable and religious societies, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to amend an act to incorporate the New-York Institution for the Blind," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, and recommended that the House do concur in the said amendments.

Ordered, That the said bill and amendments be laid on the table.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to amend an act to provide for building bridges over Oak-orchard and Marsh creeks, at or near the junction of said creeks in the town of Carlton in the county of Orleans, passed March 21st, 1844 ;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. J. Young, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same ; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

On motion of Mr. M. Brooks,

The House then adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

TUESDAY, APRIL 8, 1845.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

The minutes of yesterday were read and approved.

The petition of J. Horsely Palmer, an alien, praying for permission to hold real estate, was read, and referred to the committee on the petitions of aliens.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Onondaga, praying for the renewal of the charter of the Syracuse and Binghamton Railroad Company, was read, and referred to the committee on railroads.

The remonstrance of sundry inhabitants of the village of Syracuse in the county of Onondaga, against the passage of a law authorising the borrowing of money to build a town-house and market in said village, was read, and referred to the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Ontario, praying for the passage of an act authorising the holding of a special term of the Supreme Court at the village of Geneva in said county, was read, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

The petition of the First Presbyterian Society of the town of Dansville in the county of Steuben, praying for the passage of a law allowing said society to sell their lands, etc., was read, and referred to the committee on charitable and religious societies.

The petition of six hundred merchants of the city of New-York, praying for a reduction of the tolls on the canals west of Syracuse, was read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

The remonstrance of two hundred and forty-six inhabitants of the counties of Oswego and Oneida, against any discrimination in the tolls on the canals of this State, was read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

Four several petitions of sundry inhabitants of the counties of Ontario and Steuben, praying for the incorporation of a company to construct a railroad from Canandaigua to Corning, were read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

Four several remonstrances of sundry inhabitants of the county of Otsego, against running any portion of the New-York and Erie railroad into the State of Pennsylvania, were read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

The remonstrance of sundry inhabitants of the county of Schenectady, against the erection of a bridge across the Hudson river at the city of Albany, was read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

Four several remonstrances of sundry inhabitants of the counties of Allegany, Tompkins and Otsego, against the repeal of the act authorising the appointment of county superintendents of common schools, were read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

Two several petitions of sundry inhabitants of the county of Cattaraugus, praying for the passage of a law to locate certain portions of the New-York and Erie railroad in the State of Pennsylvania, were read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Montgomery, praying for the passage of a law requiring banks to redeem their notes at par in the cities of New-York and Albany, was read, and referred to the committee of the whole when on the bill upon that subject.

The remonstrance of sundry inhabitants of the county of Rensselaer, against the incorporation of the American and Foreign Bible Society, was read, and ordered to be laid on the table.

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the town of Gouverneur in the county of St. Lawrence, for the passage of an act to authorise the levying of a tax upon said town, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Chase accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to provide for the erection of a town-house in the town of Gouverneur in the county of St. Lawrence;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Hazelton,

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Onondaga, for the opening of the channel of Mud creek, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Chase accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act for opening the channel of Mud creek in the county of Onondaga;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Wayne, for the passage of an act to restore the distinction between town and county poor in said county, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Chase accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act in relation to the support of the poor in the county of Wayne;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Onondaga, for the passage of an act to prevent the catching of fish by means of nets in the Nine-mile creek in said county, reported unfavorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and offered the following resolution, to wit :

Resolved, That the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties be discharged from the further consideration of the petition for the passage of an act to prevent fishing with nets in the Nine-mile creek in the county of Onondaga.

On motion of Mr. Preston,

Ordered, That the said resolution be laid on the table.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to enforce the laws and preserve order."

On motion of Mr. T. R. Lee,

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

Mr. White, from the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to amend the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Bath in the county of Steuben,'" with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Dickson, from the committee on the petitions of aliens, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to enable Charles De la Forest to hold and convey real estate," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill be committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. White, from the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the village of Canton," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. M'Donald, from the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to amend the act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Geddes,'" with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Bagg, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Mutual Insurance Company of Buffalo,'" and the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a railroad from Auburn to Rochester,' passed May 13th, 1835," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

Mr. Tuthill, from the committee on roads and bridges, to which was referred the petition for the incorporation of a bridge company at Port Ontario, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Tuthill accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to incorporate the Port Ontario Bridge Company;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Skelton,

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Tuthill, from the committee on roads and bridges, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act in relation to the ferry at Blackrock," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Titus, from the committee on trade and manufactures, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Brooklyn Quay Company," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act for the publication of the session laws in two newspapers in each county of this State," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill be committed to a committee of the whole house.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Wheeler moved that all further proceedings under the call of the House be dispensed with.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Wheeler, and it was determined in the affirmative. The doors were then opened.

A communication from the Hon. Richard M. Tuthill was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

To the Hon. H. SEYMOUR,
Speaker of the Assembly.
SIR,

One of my greatest solicitudes during the session has been, that I might be permitted to record my vote for the proposed amendments of the Constitution. By resolution of the House, that vote is to be taken to-day. I am confined to my bed by illness, and for the first day during the session I find myself unable to occupy my place in the House.

If it shall be the will of the House, and in accordance with propriety, I earnestly desire that my vote may be recorded in favor of the amendments.

Respectfully your obedient servant,

RICHARD M. TUTHILL.

Townsend House, April 10, 1845.

On motion of Mr. Worden,

Ordered, That the said communication be entered upon the Journal of the House.

Mr. Boughton then withdrew his said motion for the reconsideration of the several votes on the said resolutions.

Mr. Hannum, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act concerning the district attorney of Greene county;" the bill entitled "An act relative to the city of Brooklyn;" the bill entitled "An act to authorise the board of supervisors of the county of Monroe to borrow money, and to build a bridge across the Genesee river;" and the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the American and Foreign Bible Society," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Morrison asked for and obtained leave to bring in a bill, entitled "An act to change the name of Ogden Edwards;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Bagge offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, That the engrossed bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to pay the guard of one hundred enlisted men for the protection of the jail of the city of Hudson," be referred to the committee of the whole having charge of the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Abial Payne."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Abial Payne;" on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of James Spraker;" and on the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to pay the guard of one hundred enlisted men for the protection of the jail in the city of Hudson;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. D. Lee, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Abial Payne," and agreed to the same without amendment ; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. D. Lee, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to pay the guard of one hundred enlisted men for the protection of the jail in the city of Hudson," and agreed to the same without amendment ; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to have its third reading.

Mr. D. Lee, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of James Spraker," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same ; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. D. Lee moved to reinsert the first section of the said bill, which was stricken out in committee of the whole.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. D. Lee, and it was determined in the negative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree with the committee of the whole in their report on the said bill, and it was determined in the negative.

A message from the Senate, with the bill and amendment therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had concurred in the amendment of the Assembly to the bill entitled "An act to provide for erecting a bridge across the Walkill in the village of New-Paltz," and amended the same accordingly.

The said amended bill having been examined,

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate.

The hour of half past one o'clock having arrived,

The House took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK, P. M.

The House again met.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Brower offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, That the bill entitled "An act relative to suits in justices' courts against non-resident debtors," be taken from the general orders, and ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the Trust Fire Insurance Company in the city of New-York ;" on the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to punish and prevent frauds in the use of false stamps and labels," and on the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Michael Quarters ;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Bush, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the Trust Fire Insurance Company in the city of New-York," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same ; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Bush, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Michael Quarters," and agreed to the same without amendment ; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Bush, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to punish and prevent frauds in the use of false stamps and labels," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same ; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Whitney moved that the question on agreeing with the committee of the whole in their report be laid on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Whitney, and it was determined in the negative.

The question recurred on agreeing to the report of the committee of the whole.

Mr. D. Lee called for a division of the question.

Whereupon Mr. Speaker stated the question to be, whether the House would agree to the amendment of the committee of the whole, striking out the words "being a resident of the United States," in the first section.

Mr. Chase called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the remaining portion of the report of the committee of the whole, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said amendments be engrossed, and the bill have its third reading.

A message from the Senate, with the bills therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to confirm the official acts of Ashbel Palmer, a justice of the peace ;" the bill entitled "An act to amend the act passed May 6th, 1837, and entitled 'An act to amend the act incorporating the village of Geneva ;'" the bill entitled "An act to confirm the official acts of Jonathan Lay, a justice of the peace ;" and the bill entitled "An act relative to levying a tax on dogs in the county of Queens," severally without amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bills to the Governor.

A message from the Senate, with the bill therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had rejected the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Firemen's Insurance Company of the city of New-York,' passed April 18, 1825."

A message from the Senate, with the bill therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Washington Volunteer Fire Company in the village of Troy,'" with the amendment thereto therewith delivered.

The said amendment having been read,

Mr. Van Schoonhoven moved that the House do concur in the same.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Van Schoonhoven, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act to provide for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari," was read the third time.

Debates were had thereon; when, the hour of twelve o'clock at noon having arrived, the Chair announced the special order of the House, being the consideration of the bill entitled "An act recommending a Convention of the People of this State."

On motion of Mr. J. Young,

Ordered, That the said special order be postponed until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill entitled "An act providing for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari."

Debates were again had; when

Mr. Niven called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

The House took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK, P. M.

The House again met.

The report of the Comptroller, in answer to a resolution of the Assembly of 1844, in relation to taxing rents, quarter sales, interests in water-right reservations, etc., was received and read.

[See Document No. 228.]

Mr. Van Schoonhoven moved that ten times the usual number of copies of the said report be printed.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Van Schoonhoven, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A message from the Senate, with the bills therein mentioned, was received and read, requesting the concurrence of the Assembly to the bill entitled "An act to renew an act to incorporate the Society in the city of New-York for the relief of poor widows with small children, passed April 5, 1810;" to the bill entitled "An act to regulate fisheries in the town of Esopus in the county of Ulster;" to the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Greenville and Potter's-hollow Turnpike Road Company," and to the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Fallsburgh and Liberty Turnpike Road Company."

The said bills were severally read the first time, and by unanimous consent were also read a second time, and the bill entitled "An act to renew an act to incorporate the Society in the city of New-York for the relief of poor widows with small children, passed April 5th, 1810," was referred to the committee on charitable and religious societies; the bill entitled "An act to regulate fisheries in the town of Esopus in the county of Ulster," was referred to the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties; and the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Greenville and Potter's-hollow Turnpike Road Company," and the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Fallsburgh and Liberty Turnpike Road Company," were read, and referred to the committee on roads and bridges.

The House, in committee of the whole, resumed the consideration of the bills which were before said committee at the time of taking the recess; and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Whitney, from the said committee, reported progress on the bill entitled "An act in relation to the construction of the New-York and Erie railroad," and asked for leave to sit again.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would grant the committee of the whole leave to sit again on the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Whitney, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act in relation to the Normal School," made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

A message from the Senate, with the bill therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Unadilla and Norwich Turnpike Company," with the amendments thereto therewith delivered.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Raymond moved that the House do concur in the same.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Raymond, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Mr. Worden moved to restore the fourteenth section of the said bill, with the following amendments, to wit :

4th line, after "Ulster," insert "and Chenango."

10th line, after "obtained," strike out "within the State," and insert "through the interior of Sullivan county."

15th line, after "Deposite," strike out "within this State," and insert "on said route."

19th line, after "road," strike out the remainder of the section, and insert "on such route as the directors shall decide through said counties of Sullivan, Ulster and Chenango."

So that the same shall read as follows, to wit :

§ 14. The said New-York and Erie Railroad Company are also required to construct their road between the summit of the Shawangunk ridge and Deposite, within the State of New-York, passing through the interior of the county of Sullivan, and, if necessary, through a portion of the counties of Ulster and Chenango, provided a practicable route can be obtained, and the adoption of which will not greatly prejudice the public interests, which shall be decided by the certificate of the said John B. Jervis, Orville W. Childs and Horatio Allen, or by any two of them provided the three cannot agree, after a sufficient survey to be made by them or under their direction, at the expense of the said company ; and if a route can be obtained through the interior of Sullivan county, which the said John B. Jervis, Orville W. Child and Horatio Allen, or any two of them, shall decide to be practicable, and the adoption of which will not greatly prejudice the public interests, then the said John B. Jervis, Orville W. Childs and Horatio Allen, or any two of them, shall locate the road between the said summit of the Shawangunk ridge and Deposite on said route ; but in case the said John B. Jervis, Orville W. Childs and Horatio Allen, or any two of them, shall not so decide and locate the road after such survey, then and in that case the said New-York and Erie Railroad Company are authorised to construct a portion of their said road on such route as the directors shall decide through said counties of Sullivan, Ulster and Chenango.

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree with the committee of the whole in their report on the said bill, as amended, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

A message from the Governor was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
Albany, April 21, 1845. }

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

I have this day approved and signed the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Greene,' passed April 12th, 1842."

SILAS WRIGHT.

A resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, That the Senate concur in the amendment made by the Assembly to the resolution of the Senate for the adjournment of this Legislature, the said amendment fixing upon the fourteenth day of May as the time for such adjournment.

On motion of Mr. Coe,

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the bill entitled "An act in relation to the construction of the New-York and Erie railroad."

Mr. Tefft moved that the said bill be laid on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Niven,

Resolved, That the bill entitled "An act to renew an act to provide for the construction of a railroad from the village of Warwick to the

New-York and Erie railroad," be referred to the committee on railroads, with instructions to report the same complete.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Edwards,

Resolved, That the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the New-York Equitable Insurance Company,' passed April 23d, 1843, and the several acts amendatory thereof," be ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill from the Senate, and also the bill reported in the Assembly, both entitled "An act to reduce the number of town officers and town and county expenses, and to prevent abuses in auditing town and county accounts;" on the bill entitled "An act to authorise the establishment of savings banks," and on the bill entitled "An act for the promotion of agricultural science;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and announced that the hour of half past one o'clock had arrived.

Whereupon,

The House took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

The House again met.

The House, in committee of the whole, resumed the consideration of the bills which were before said committee at the time of taking the recess; and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Russell, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the two several bills entitled "An act to reduce the number of town officers and town and county expenses, and to prevent abuses in auditing town and county accounts," and had made sundry amendments to the bill from the Senate, and agreed to the same; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Raymond moved to lay the said report on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Raymond, and it was determined in the negative.

On motion of Mr. Bevens,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the amendment to the first section, as adopted in committee of the whole, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. J. Brooks moved to amend the twentieth section of the said bill, by adding the words "nor for more than half a day, unless engaged for more than four hours in the service."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. J. Brooks, and it was determined in the negative.

On motion of Mr. Coe,

The House then adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Comstock offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, That hereafter, on all questions which shall be taken by ayes and nays, the names of the absentees shall be published in the papers of this city, under the direction of the Clerk of this House.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Leave of absence was asked for by Mr. Bush for two days, by Mr. Boughton for two days, by Mr. Horton for two days, by Mr. Hall for ten days, by Mr. Hannum for this afternoon, by Mr. S. A. Brown for three days, by Mr. M'Vean for this afternoon, by Mr. Litchfield for three days, by Mr. Ross for six days, by Mr. Bunker for one day, and by Mr. Heermans for this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would grant such leave, and it was determined in the negative.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Morrison offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

The House then adjourned to nine o'clock on Monday morning next.

MONDAY, MAY 5, 1845.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. M'Donough.

The minutes of Saturday were read and approved.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Cortland, praying for the passage of an act to abolish the office of superintendent of the poor, and to authorise the sale of the poor-house farm of said county, was read, and referred to the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties.

The resolutions adopted at a meeting of the inhabitants of the county of Jefferson, praying for the revival of the charter of the Watertown and Rome Railroad Company, and of the Watertown and Cape Vincent Railroad Company, were read, and referred to the committee on railroads.

The petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Cayuga, praying for the passage of a law to abolish the office of county superintendent of common schools, and for a reduction of the number of town officers, was read, and ordered to be laid on the table.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Morrison asked for and obtained leave to bring in a bill, entitled "An act to change the name of Charles Jones to Charles Jones Baxter;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Morrison,

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Oakley, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the New-York Industrial Association;" the bill entitled "An act to authorise certain individuals in the town of Edinburgh, Saratoga county, to loan money;" and the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the New-York Equitable Insurance Company,' passed April 23d, 1823, and the several acts amendatory thereof," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to authorise the common council of the city of Buffalo to borrow money, and for other purposes," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, that the committee had examined the said amendments, and do recommend that the House concur in the same.

Ordered, That the said bill and amendments be laid on the table.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act in relation to the members of fire companies and hook and ladder companies," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill be committed to a committee of the whole house.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act for the preservation of game in the county of Ulster," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill be committed to a committee of the whole house.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to regulate fisheries in the town of Esopus in the county of Ulster," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Chase, from the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to authorise the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New-York to raise money by loan, and to create a public fund or stock, to be called Building Loan Stock No. 2," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Hine, from the select committee to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act for the better security of mechanics and others erecting buildings and furnishing materials therefor in the town of Kingston in the county of Ulster," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Garretson, from the committee on charitable and religious societies, to which was referred the petition of the elders and deacons of the Reformed Dutch Church of the town of Marbletown in the county of Ulster, praying for the passage of an act authorising them to sell a part of their real estate, reported favorably to the prayer of the petitioners, and asked leave to bring in a bill.

Leave being granted, Mr. Garretson accordingly brought in the said bill, entitled "An act to authorise the elders and deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church at Marbletown to sell and convey certain real estate;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time.

On motion of Mr. Garretson,

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

By unanimous consent, and

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. M. Brooks, from the select committee to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to reduce the number of town officers and town and county expenses, and to prevent abuses in auditing town and county accounts," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said amendments be engrossed, and the bill have its third reading.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. D. Lee,

Resolved, That the bill relating to the funding of the debt of the city of Buffalo, be taken from the table, and referred to a select committee, consisting of the members attending this house from the county of Erie, with instructions to report the same complete.

Mr. Oakley, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to revive the act to provide for the construction of a railroad from the village of Warwick to the New-York and Erie railroad, passed May 13th, 1837, and the act amendatory, passed April 12th, 1842," and found the same correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Bailey moved that the House proceed to the consideration of the bill entitled "An act to provide for laying out and constructing a road through the Highlands, from the Croton bridge in the county of Westchester, to Fishkill landing in the county of Dutchess."

The said bill having been read the third time on a previous day, the question now recurred on the final passage of the same.

Debates were had thereon; when

Mr. Morrison called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the final passage of the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Oakley, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act for the publication of the session laws in two newspapers in each county in this State," and found the same correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to extend the jurisdiction of the circuit judge of the first circuit, in hearing non-enumerated motions," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, that the committee had examined the said amendments, and do recommend that the House concur in the same.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred with them in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

Mr. Hannum, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act for the better security of mechanics and others erecting buildings and furnishing materials therefor in this State (except such cities and villages as are provided for in two several acts, passed April 29 and May 7, 1844," and found the same correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act relative to the village of Syracuse," was read the third time.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Russell moved to amend the said bill, by adding thereto the following sections, to wit :

§ 3. The money borrowed under this act, shall be payable in annual instalments of one thousand dollars each, of the principal sum ; the first instalment to be paid one year from the date of the first bond, and the interest on all sums so borrowed shall be payable annually. It shall be the duty of the trustees of said village, in each and every year in which any sum, either principal or interest, of said loan shall become due or payable, to cause the necessary sums to meet such payments, which shall be unpaid from other sources, to be levied and collected upon the taxable inhabitants and property of said village, in the same manner ordinary expenses of said village are levied and collected, and to apply the same in the discharge of the principal and interest of the said money borrowed under this act, as the same shall become due and payable.

§ 4. This act shall not take effect until it shall have been approved by the electors of said village, the trustees of which shall call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said village, by publishing a notice in three or more of the papers printed in said village, ten days previous to the time of meeting, at which it shall be lawful for every person entitled to vote at an annual election in said village, to deposite a ballot, bearing the words "for the market loan," or "against the market loan." The election, reception of votes, and canvassing the same, shall be conducted by the trustees of said village in the same manner that elections for trustees of said village are now conducted, and the result of said election shall be entered upon the records of said village. Whenever a majority of the ballots cast at any such election or special meeting shall bear the inscription of "For the market loan," then said trustees shall have power to make such loan, or any part of it, as they may think proper, for the purposes specified in the preceding sections.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Russell, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. M. Brooks moved to lay the said motion of Mr. Chase on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. M. Brooks, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to sanction the regulation of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New-York," with the amendments accompanying the same; and that in the opinion of the Senate, the said bill requires the assent of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the Legislature to pass the same into a law.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Constant moved that the House concur in the same, and that the question on the final passage of the said bill and amendments be now put.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Constant, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree to the final passage of the said bill and amendments, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

The Chair announced the appointment of a select committee on the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act in relation to the Natural History of New-York,'" to consist of Mr. T. R. Lee, Mr. Comstock, Mr. J. Young, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Fonda.

A message from the Senate, with the bill and amendments therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had concurred in the amendments to the bill entitled "An act to authorise the common council of the city of Buffalo to borrow money, and for other purposes," agreed upon by the committee of conference to which the said bill was referred, and had passed the said bill, as amended.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Governor.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Gregory, from the committee on trade and manufactures, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to renew and extend an act passed February 23d, 1839, incorporating the American Atlantic Steam Navigation Company," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, that the committee had examined the said amendments, and recommend that the House do concur in the same.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act for the reorganization of the almshouse department in the city and county of New-York," was read the third time.

Debates were had thereon ; when

Mr. Bailey moved that the said bill be recommitted to the committee on the judiciary, with instructions to report the same complete, with an amendment to the effect that "the commissioner be appointed by the common council, to hold his office till May, 1846 ; and that said commissioner be elected at the next charter election, for the term of three years, by the people, and every third year thereafter, or as often as a vacancy shall occur."

Debates were again had ; when

Mr. Blake called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put ?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Bailey, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act to repeal an act in relation to the building of a jail in the county of Hamilton, passed March 22, 1844," was read the third time.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Newkirk moved to amend the said bill as follows, to wit :

In the fifth line of the first section, after the word "county," strike out "and," and insert "if a majority of said board of supervisors, at this or any subsequent meeting, shall be in favor of building said jail, they shall then."

And at the end of the said first section, add "said expenses not to exceed three thousand dollars." And,

" § 2. This act shall take effect immediately."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Newkirk, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree to the final passage of the said bill, as amended, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had concurred in the amendment of the Assembly to the resolution of the Senate for the appointment of a Regent of the University, so as to fix upon Saturday the tenth instant, at twelve o'clock at noon, as the time for making such appointment.

The engrossed bill entitled "An act to aid the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the city of New-York," was read the third time.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
Albany, May 9, 1845. }

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

I have this day approved and signed the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act for the relief of Robert Gere and Philo C. Weaver,' passed May 2d, 1844."

And the bill entitled "An act to authorise the reference of certain actions at law."

SILAS WRIGHT.

The hour of half past one o'clock having arrived,
 The House took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

The House again met.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Wheeler, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of an additional number of commissioners of deeds in and for the city and county of New-York," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

On motion of Mr. Wheeler,

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had rejected the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to provide for the compensation of jurors in the city of New-York."

A message from the Senate was received and read, requesting the concurrence of the Assembly to the bill therewith delivered, entitled "An act to authorise the common council of the city of Utica to levy a tax to defray the cost of certain improvements at and near Nail creek."

The said bill was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and referred to the committee on the internal affairs of towns and counties.

A message from the Senate, with the bills therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the trustees and associates of the Brooklyn Benevolent Society;" and the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Greenhill Wharf Company,' passed April 20th, 1830," severally without amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bills to the Governor.

The bill entitled "An act to amend the act to incorporate the village of Chittenango, passed March 15th, 1842;" and the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Evert Yates," were returned from the Senate.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bills to the Governor.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to provide for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari," with the accompanying amendments, and the substitution of a new title.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Morrison moved that the House do non-concur in the same, and that a committee of conference be appointed on the part of the Assembly, and a similar committee be requested to be appointed on the part of the Senate, to confer on the said bill and amendments.

Debates were had thereon ; when

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Morrison, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Hine presented the petition of sundry inhabitants of the town of Kingston in the county of Ulster, praying for the passage of an act authorising the holding of a special town meeting for the election of a justice of the peace in said town ; which was read, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. Oakley, from the select committee to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to improve the militia of this State," with instructions to report the same complete, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, and agreed to the same without amendment ; which he was directed to report to the house.

Mr. Fonda moved to lay the said report upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Fonda, and it was determined in the negative.

Mr. Sweeney called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said bill be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. M'Key, from the select committee to which was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of the county of Madison, in relation to the case of Thomas W. Dorr of Rhode-Island, reported in writing, and concluded by offering the following resolutions, to wit :

Resolved, That while the committee disavow the right of the people of one State directly to interfere with the internal affairs or civil jurisprudence of any other State, yet we claim the right of expressing our opinion in all such cases, in a temperate, friendly and dispassionate manner.

Resolved, That the acts of the people of the State of Rhode-Island, in the formation and adoption of the People's Constitution of 1841, were characterized with extreme prudence and caution, admirably calculated to guard against frauds, and to obtain a fair expression of the will of the people.

Resolved, That the constitution above referred to, and the government established under it, were, in the opinion of the committee, emphatically the constitution and government of the State, adopted and organized by a large majority of the people of the State, in the rightful and lawful exercise of their sovereign and inalienable rights.

Resolved, That the incarceration of Thomas W. Dorr, for his participation in the philanthropic work of establishing an equitable government in his own State, is not warranted by the nature of the case ; and that his unconditional restoration to liberty is demanded by justice, by humanity, and by public opinion.

[See Document No. 248.]

Mr. C. F. Crosby moved to lay the said report and resolutions upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. C. F. Crosby, and it was determined in the negative.

A message from the Senate, with the bill and amendments therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had consented to the appointment of a committee of conference on the amendments to the bill entitled "An act to provide for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari," which are the subject of disagreement between the two houses; and that Mr. Bockee, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Chamberlain, were of the said committee on the part of the Senate.

On motion of Mr. L. H. Brown,

The House proceeded to the consideration of the bill entitled "An act in relation to the Chenango bridge."

Mr. Coe moved to lay the said bill upon the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Coe, and it was determined in the negative.

Mr. Hannum, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act relative to expenses incurred in enforcing the laws and preserving order in the counties of Delaware and Ulster,' passed April 14th, 1845 ;" and the bill entitled "An act to equalize taxation," and found the same severally correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

Mr. Garretson, from the committee on charitable and religious societies, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act relative to the Hudson Orphan and Relief Society," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, that the committee had examined the said amendments, and recommend that the House do non-concur therein.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree with the committee in their report, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have non-concurred in the said amendments.

Mr. Titus, from the committee on trade and manufactures, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to prevent frauds in inspection in the county of Kings," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

On motion of Mr. Titus,

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

Mr. Ross, from the committee on the incorporation of cities and villages, to which was referred the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the village of Canton," with the amendments of the Senate thereto, reported, that the committee had examined the said amendments, and recommend that the House do concur therein.

Ordered, That the said report and bill be laid on the table.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Tibbits,

Resolved, That the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act for the construction of a turnpike road from the village of Greenville to the village of Pottershollow," be taken from the general orders, and ordered to a third reading.

Mr. T. R. Lee moved to suspend the special order, consisting of the "General orders of the day," till half past three o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. T. R. Lee, and it was determined in the negative.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the several bills from the Senate, entitled as follows, to wit :

"An act providing for the distribution of copies of the general index of the documents and laws of the State ;"

"An act for the relief of Samuel S. Riddle, Constant Cook, John Magee and Horatio R. Riddle ;"

"An act for the relief of William M'Lachlin ;"

"An act for the relief of John W. Wyckoff ;"

"An act for the final settlement of the accounts of John R. Brodhead, agent for procuring colonial documents ;"

"An act for the relief of John H. Boyd ;" and

"An act for the relief of Thomas J. Gilbert :"

And after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. J. Young, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act providing for the distribution of copies of the general index of the documents and laws of the State," made sundry amendments thereto, amended the title by adding the words "and the census of the United States," and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the amendments ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to have its third reading.

Mr. J. Young, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Samuel S. Riddle, Constant Cook, John Magee and Horatio R. Riddle," and agreed to the same without amendment; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to a third reading.

Mr. J. Young, from the same committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the bill entitled "An act for the relief of William M'Lachlin," made an amendment thereto, and agreed to the same; which he was directed to report to the house.

The said amendment was read, in the words following, to wit:

After the word "lock," in the fifth line of the first section of the said bill, insert "and not sold by said M'Lachlin."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said amendment, and it was determined in the negative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred with them in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

A message from the Senate was received and read, requesting the concurrence of the Assembly to the bill therewith delivered, entitled "An act declaratory of title fourth, chapter second, part third of the Revised Statutes, relating to courts held by justices of the peace, and the several acts modifying, enlarging, altering or amending said title."

The said bill was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act in relation to the estate of William D. Ross deceased, late of Essex in the county of Essex in this State," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

On motion of Mr. T. R. Lee,

Mr. T. R. Lee called for a division of the question.

Whereupon,

The first amendment of the Senate to the said bill was read, in the words following, to wit :

In the tenth line of the first section, strike out "now by law entitled to vote for governor," and insert "who shall be entitled by law to vote at such annual election."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said amendment, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have passed the same without amendment.

Mr. Crain, from the committee on ways and means, asked for and obtained leave to bring in a bill, entitled "An act to provide for the payment of certain expenses of government;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Fonda moved to make the said bill a special order for this afternoon, immediately after the disposal of the bill relating to the ferries between the city of New-York and Long Island.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Fonda, and it was determined in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Jones,

The House then took a recess until half past three o'clock this afternoon.

HALF PAST THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

The House again met.

A resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur,) That the tenth joint rule of the Senate and Assembly be so far suspended, as to permit the bill entitled "An act in relation to contracts with railroad companies," to be sent to the Assembly for concurrence.

Thereupon,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their said resolution.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said resolution to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the same.

The said bill, entitled "An act in relation to contracts with railroad companies," having been accordingly received from the Senate, was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and referred to the committee on railroads.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had concurred in the resolution of the Assembly to suspend the tenth joint rule, so far as to permit the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Wilson Academy," to be sent to the Senate for concurrence.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to amend the Revised Statutes, relative to procuring abortions," with the accompanying amendments.

The said bill and amendments were read ; and the amendments having been again read,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred with them in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

The bill entitled "An act to amend an act in relation to the Natural History of New-York," was returned from the Senate.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Governor.

A message from the Senate, with the bill and amendments therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had concurred in the amendments of the Assembly to the bill entitled "An act to amend the law in relation to suits against foreign corporations," and amended the bill accordingly.

The said amended bill having been examined,

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate.

A message from the Senate, with the bill and amendments therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had concurred in the amendments of the Assembly to the bill entitled "An act providing for the distribution of copies of the general index of the documents and laws of the State, and the census of the United States," with sundry additional amendments thereto therewith delivered.

The said bill and amendments were read; and the amended amendments having been again read,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their amendments to the amendments of the Assembly to the said bill.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred with them in their amendments to the amendments of the Assembly to the said bill.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had rejected the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act for the relief of Mary Ann Van Riper."

Mr. Morrison, from the committee of conference on the part of the Assembly, on the bill entitled "An act to provide for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari," and the amendments of the Senate thereto, which are the subject of disagreement between the two houses, reported, that they had conferred with the committee on the part of the Senate, and agreed upon certain amendments which they now submitted to the house.

The said amendments having been read,

Resolved, That the House do agree to the amendments made to the said bill by the committee of conference.

A copy of a resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, That the Senate do concur in the amendments proposed by the committee of conference to the bill entitled "An act to provide for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari."

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments made by the committee of conference, and amended the bill accordingly.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh, from the select committee to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act in relation to the contracts of railroad companies," reported, that the committee had examined the said bill, and saw no reason why the same should not be passed into a law.

Mr. Chase moved that the said bill be now read the third time.

Mr. Harris objected to the reception of the said motion.

The Chair decided that the said motion could not be entertained by the House, without unanimous consent.

Mr. Van Schoonhoven appealed from the decision of the Chair.

Debates were had thereon; when

Mr. Van Schoonhoven withdrew his appeal.

Mr. Comstock moved that the said bill be ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Comstock, and it was determined in the affirmative.

EIGHT O'CLOCK P. M.

The House again met.

The bill entitled "An act providing for the removal of cases decided by the Canal Board, to the Supreme Court, by certiorari," was returned from the Senate.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Governor.

The House resumed the consideration of the bill entitled "An act to establish and regulate ferries between the city of New-York and Long Island;" the question being on the motion made by Mr. Bailey to reconsider the vote on the final passage of the said bill.

Debates were had thereon ; when

Mr. Bailey moved to lay the said question upon the table, until to-morrow morning at half past ten o'clock.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Bailey, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had concurred in the resolution of the Assembly, appointing a committee to examine the Treasurer's accounts.

A resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur,) That the tenth joint rule of the Senate and Assembly be so far suspended, as to permit the following bills to be sent by the Senate to the Assembly for concurrence, to wit :

"An act to authorise John Watts De Peyster to erect a dock adjoining his lands on the Hudson river ;"

"An act to authorise the appointment of a supreme court commissioner to reside in the town of Worcester in the county of Otsego ;"

"An act to incorporate the Union Mutual Insurance Company ;"

"An act to incorporate the Norwich Cotton and Woolen Manufacturing Company ;"

"An act to incorporate the Rochester Gaslight Company ;"

"An act to incorporate the Ausable and Saranac Plank or Macadamized Road and Internal Navigation Company ;"

"An act to authorise Archibald Russel to erect a dock or wharf in the Hudson river in the town of Esopus, adjoining his land ;"

"An act to incorporate the Provident Life Mutual Insurance Company of the city of New-York ;"

"An act authorising the appointment of a supreme court commissioner to reside in the county of Washington, and for other purposes ;"

"An act for the relief of Josiah Barber ;"

"An act to amend an act entitled 'An act for the relief of partners and joint debtors,' passed April 18th, 1838 ;"

"An act relative to the Syracuse and Utica Railroad Company ;" and

"An act relative to the Utica and Schenectady Railroad Company."

Thereupon,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their said resolution.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said resolution to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the same.

A message from the Governor, transmitting the bill therein mentioned, with his objections thereto, was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
Albany, May 13, 1845. }

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

GENTLEMEN—A bill originating in your honorable body, entitled "An act in relation to the canals," has been placed before me for my approval and signature. I find myself unable to approve this bill, and therefore, in obedience to the Constitution, return it, with my objections.

The first section of the bill appropriates one hundred and ninety-seven thousand dollars from the revenues of the canals, and commands its payment by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, for the following objects, and in the following proportions, namely :

1. Twenty-five thousand dollars "for the re-construction of such locks on the Crooked Lake canal" as the Canal Commissioners shall judge necessary to ensure the safety of navigation on that canal.

2. Eighty-two thousand dollars "for the purpose of completing and bringing into use such works on the Erie canal enlargement as the Canal Commissioners shall decide will best promote the interests of the State, and the facilities of navigation."

3. Fifty thousand dollars "to be expended upon the Genesee Valley canal, for the following objects, to wit :

1. "For the purpose of preserving the work on the Genesee Valley canal, which has been finished and not brought into use ;

2. "Or which has not been finished ;

3. "And the materials that have been procured and paid for, or estimated to contractors for such work ;

4. "And for the purpose of completing the construction of such portions of the unfinished work on the said canal, as the Canal Commissioners shall be of opinion will be the most economical for the interest of the State."

Twenty thousand dollars to be expended upon the Black River canal south of Boonville, for the same objects as those specified in relation to the Genesee Valley canal ;

And twenty thousand dollars to be expended upon the Black River canal north of Boonville, for the same objects.

I have used the language of the bill, as far as I could, and make my statement of the provisions clearly intelligible, and have stated fully and truly the provisions of the first section of it, if I understand them correctly.

Against the first expenditure authorized, namely, the reconstruction of such locks on the Crooked Lake canal as the Canal Commissioners shall judge necessary to ensure the safety of navigation on that canal, I make no objection. On the contrary, the information I have been able to obtain, induces the belief that the expenditure would be a proper one, and may become necessary to the navigation of the canal.

Against the second expenditure authorized for the purpose of completing and bringing into use such works on the Erie canal enlargement, as the Canal Commissioners shall decide will best promote the interest of the State, and the facilities of navigation, I should not find myself compelled to interpose objection. The enactment, it is true, does not follow the guarded precedent found in chap. 278 of the laws of the last session, where the rule of expenditure was a previous determination that it was better economy, and more for the interest of the State, to complete and bring into use the new work, than to repair and continue in use the old. Yet the information I have been able to obtain from official and authentic sources, authorizes the belief that the sum of eighty-two thousand dollars, proposed to be appropriated to this object, might be expended upon the Erie canal enlargement, in completing and bringing into use new locks and other structures, within the rule laid down in the act of the last year ; and the Legislature cannot entertain a stronger confidence than I do in the judgment of the board of Canal Commissioners, so to direct this expenditure as to bring it within this prudent rule, or as near as possible to it.

While the magnitude and condition of the public debt, and the state of the revenues applicable to its payment, shall be such as to require a continuance of the suspension of the public works, this rule appears to me to be manifestly the safe and proper one, as to the unfinished and partly completed new works : and if the enactment under consideration had left it to the judgment of the Canal Commissioners to complete and bring into use such works only, on the Erie canal enlargement, as would promote the interest of the State, and the facilities of navigation, the provision would have been less objectionable. It is not so. The mandate upon the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, to pay the money appropriated, is imperative, and of course, as I suppose, the implied obligation upon the Canal Commissioners to expend it, upon the objects specified, is equally imperative. If they cannot find those objects, the completion and bringing into use of which will be "better economy and more for the interest of the State," "than it is to repair and continue in use the old works," in the language of the law of the last year, they must select such as, in their judgment, "will best promote the interest of the State, and the facilities of navigation," in the language of this bill. That is, if they cannot find those works, which can be completed and brought into use more economically and better for the interest of the State, than to repair and continue in use the old works, they must select those which they shall decide will come the nearest to this rule of expenditure. This is my understanding of the fair construction of the provision, and yet, as the information I have received satisfies me that the Canal Commissioners can find unfinished works upon the Erie canal enlargement, upon which the amount of this appropriation may be expended, without a violation of this safe rule, I should not be compelled to withhold my assent from this enactment of the bill.

I have come to the same conclusion in relation to the three first objects of expenditure upon the Genesee Valley canal, as they are found specified in the bill, and are above enumerated, viz :

1. To preserve the work which has been finished and not brought into use.

2. To preserve the work which has not been finished.

3. To preserve the materials that have been procured and paid for, or estimated to contractors for such work.

These are expenditures to preserve, protect, and save work which has been done at the public expense, and materials which were required in the prosecution of that work, up to the time of its suspension for the want of the necessary means to prosecute it to completion, and must therefore be considered as expenditures dictated by economy and the best interests of the State, if the works themselves and the materials for their further prosecution, at a future day, are worth preserving. Should this point be considered a questionable one, it is not a question for me to decide. That decision must be left to that Legislature, which, having the means at its command, shall be called upon to authorize the resumption and completion of these works. The present Legislature has, by the passage of this bill, pronounced its judgment in favor of the present preservation of the works and materials, in the condition in which the suspension has left them, and that judgment I am not disposed to resist. These provisions of the bill, therefore, if unconnected with others which are insuperably objectionable, I should approve.

The same remarks will be applicable to the appropriation for the Black River canal, so far as the expenditures are directed to be made for the preservation of the works and materials; and the language of the appropriation, referring to that for the Genesee Valley canal, is, "for the like purposes, and to be expended in the like manner."

This brings me to the provisions of the bill which I find myself unable to approve. That relating to the Genesee Valley canal is enumerated above, under the fourth head of expenditure upon that canal, and is, by the force of the language last above quoted, in effect, repeated in reference to the Black River canal. The expenditure upon both is directed to be "for the purpose of completing the construction of such portions of the unfinished work on the said canal as the Canal Commissioners shall be of opinion will be the most economical for the interest of the State." This enactment I am compelled to consider as putting an end to the policy of a suspension of the public works, until the debt of the State shall be brought within the safe and certain power and control of its revenues, without taxation upon the people; and as a distinct resumption of those works, under circumstances quite as objectionable, in reference to the provisions and policy of the suspension act of 1842, and the other legislation, previous and subsequent, upon the same subject, as such a resumption would be, without any forms of limitation upon the expenditure.

I am well aware that this bill preserves the forms of limitation, and that its friends appear to have convinced themselves that its provisions are in strict accordance with the provisions and policy of the suspension act, and of course, I presume, with the other legislation to which I refer. In this view of the enactment in the bill, now under immediate consideration, I am wholly unable, after the most careful examination and mature reflection, to concur with those who hold these opinions, and hence my inability to approve and sign the bill itself, while this provision constitutes a part of it. I will proceed to state the grounds of my dissent, and my objections to the enactment, as concisely as shall be consistent with a clear and full understanding of them.

The assumption upon which the appropriation in the first section of the bill rests is, that there is a surplus of the canal revenues, equal to the sum thereby appropriated, over and above all the requirements of the suspension law of 1842, which surplus is open to the free disposal of the Legislature, without any infringement upon existing pledges of the public faith or any violation of the sound policy declared and established by the passage of the suspension act. At least it appears to me that the appropriation rests upon the assumption of these premises, and my objections grow out of my belief, that these premises are entirely erroneous.

In the first place, if the surplus assumed did, in fact, exist beyond the express requirements of the act of 1842, and beyond a sound and faithful adherence to the policy of that act, I do not think the Legislature could make the appropriation of it, for a resumption of the work upon the unfinished canals, without a direct infringement upon numerous and long existing pledges of the public faith, and pledges too, which are now pressingly calling for fulfilment and redemption.

The first of these pledges, to which I propose to refer, is that contained in the law authorizing the construction of the "Cayuga and Seneca canal," which was passed on the 20th day of April, 1825. That law declares that "the moneys appropriated shall form a part of the canal debt, and be repaid out of the Canal Fund."

On the same day, the 20th of April, 1825, a law was passed to authorize the construction of the "Oswego canal," which declares, "and the said funds hereby appropriated shall form a part of the canal debt, to be repaid by the Canal Fund."

At the time when these laws were passed, the terms "Canal Fund" had a definite signification, well known to the public creditors of the State, and to those who proposed to become such. It was that sacred fund, set apart and pledged by the constitution of the State, for the security of those who should make loans of money to it for the prosecution of its great undertakings, the completion of the Erie and Champlain canals. It was the fund which had embodied the public confidence, not merely in our own country, but in Europe also, and had raised the credit of the State to a proud elevation. A pledge of this fund, a promise of payment out of it, would be sure to command loans upon favorable terms, and without embarrassment, or delay. It would do that almost without a reflection as to the promise of productiveness of the work proposed to be constructed with the money advanced.

Those who scanned the constitution closely, or listened attentively to the discussions which attended the passage of these laws, were aware that the pledge of the constitution did not reach these appropriations; but they saw it declared that the Legislature possessed the power to pledge the fund, subject to the pledge which the constitution had placed upon it, and that these appropriations would be the first liens upon that rich fund when the constitutional pledge should be redeemed. These declarations were palpably true, and that they secured the confidence of the public was demonstratively manifested in the avidity with which capitalists sought and took the loans for the construction of these canals.

The law for the construction of the Chenango canal, passed on the 23d day of February, 1833, contains the next pledge upon this fund, to which I propose to refer. It authorizes the loaning of one million of dollars; declares that the loans made under it shall be paid after the close of the year 1845, "or sooner, if the debt now charged on the canal revenues shall have been paid;" and after pledging the tolls to be derived from the canal, when made, and all gifts, grants and donations which might be made to the State on account of the canal, as a fund for the payment of the interest and principal of the sums borrowed for its construction, contains this section:

"§ 7. If the funds appropriated in the preceding sections shall not prove sufficient to pay the costs and expenses of the Chenango canal, at the time when the certificates of stock shall become due, then it shall be the duty of the Commissioners of the Canal Fund to pay the same out of any moneys which may be on hand, belonging to the Canal Fund, which may not be pledged by the constitution of this State."

The last of the stock issued for the construction of the Erie and Champlain canals, was made redeemable on the first of July, 1845—July of the present year. Then the constitutional pledge was to be removed from the Canal Fund, by the final payment of the Erie and Champlain canal debt.

The whole of the stocks for the construction of the Oswego canal, $421,304 in amount, and $150,000 of those for the construction of the Cayuga and Seneca canal, were made redeemable on the 1st of July, 1846, just one year after the final payment of the Erie and Champlain canal debt, and the redemption of the Constitutional pledge.

The law above referred to, for the construction of the Chenango canal, required the $1,000,000 of stock to be issued under it, to be made redeemable "after the year eighteen hundred and forty-five," which is to say, on the first day of January, 1846, six months before the Oswego and Cayuga and Seneca canal stocks would become payable, and directed the Commissioners of the Canal Fund "to pay the same out of any moneys which may be on hand belonging to the Canal Fund, which may not be pledged by the Constitution of this State."

Subsequent legislation, in furtherance of the construction of this canal, increased the amount of Chenango canal stocks redeemable on the first of January next, from $1,000,000, authorized by the first act above referred to, to $2,362,535.66; and that amount of Chenango canal debt is now payable on that day.

Here the pledges made in the laws authorizing the loans for the Cayuga and Seneca and Oswego canals, were completely circumvented, unless the Canal Fund should have the ability to redeem all the three pledges on the days named.

The Chenango stock was made first redeemable, and the direction to the Commissioners of the Canal Fund to pay it out of any moneys on hand "which may not be pledged by the Constitution of this State," gave to that stock positive priority, as the pledge in favor of the Cayuga and Seneca and Oswego stocks was not a constitutional, but a legislative pledge.

Is the Canal Fund to possess the ability to pay the $2,362,535.66 of Chenango canal stock on the first day of January next, and the $571,304 of Cayuga and Seneca and Oswego canal stocks, on the 1st day of July next, and to meet the appropriation made by the first section of this bill? No one expects it, or pretends that it can be so. It is not to be able to meet the payments of the stocks alone, in any way but by new loans, which are not yet authorized by any law.

Still, are not these pledges in favor of the holders of these stocks binding upon the faith and honor of the State? Are those made to the lenders of the money with which the Oswego, and Cayuga and Seneca canals were constructed, less solemn and obligatory, because a subsequent Legislature interposed a pledge in favor of the holders of a much larger amount of the Chenango stocks? So far from seeing any release from these solemn pledges of the public faith to private citizens, in this conflicting legislation, I am able to see only increased obligation, and especially upon this Legislature, the last which is to meet in the State, before the day of payment, under one of these pledges, is to arrive—the Legislature which must provide the means to redeem these pledges, or they must be forfeited.

I confess my inability to find anything in the suspension act of 1842, or in any other law, which releases us from the full obligations of all these pledges to our public creditors, and I cannot bring myself to believe that the oath I have taken, will permit me to consent to appropriations of the moneys of the Canal Fund to objects not indispensable to the preservation of the property of the fund and the productiveness of its revenues, in open disregard and willing violation of the faith of the people of the State, thus trebly pledged. It does not relieve my sense of duty, to say that the debts cannot be paid at the day, in any event, and that the only question is, whether we shall pay a comparatively small sum more, or less, on that day, as, in either case, our faith will be equally broken. The debtor who pays all it is in his power to pay, may claim to have saved his principles and his honor, though his faith and promise be broken, but he, who does less than this, may not be able to sustain this claim.

It has been said that these certificates of stock are not made payable upon any day certain, "but at the pleasure of the State," after a day named in the certificate, and therefore that the faith of the State is not pledged to pay at any precise period, but only when it pleases to pay after the day named. To my understanding, the faith and honor, and pleasure of the State, used in reference to obligations of this description, are, practically speaking, terms of like meaning and import. What is the obligation of the bond, or the promise of a sovereign state, but its pleasure? What is its faith, or its honor, but its pleasure? It pays its bond, or repudiates it, at its sovereign pleasure, and no power on earth, unless it be another and more powerful sovereign state, can coerce it, or enforce the bond. It fulfils its promise, or breaks it, precisely as its sovereign pleasure shall dictate, and who can bring suit, or levy an execution? It preserves its faith, and maintains its honor, or throws both to the winds to gratify its sovereign pleasure, and who shall set bounds to the indulgence of that "pleasure,?" Just as much then, is the obligation to pay at all dependent upon the pleasure of the State, as the time of that payment, when the day to make it is named in the bond. This language, in the obligation of a sovereign state to a citizen, was probably introduced in deference to the sovereignty of the august contracting party, and as a signification that it could not be coerced, and that its pleasure is its only pledge of payment. The phraseology is believed to be uniform in stocks of this description.

It is certainly uniform in the stocks of this State, and was inserted in all the scrip issued under the constitutional pledge, which was made to secure the payment of the Erie and Champlain canal stocks, as fully as it is found in the Chenango, Cayuga and Seneca, and Oswego stocks. Indeed all, or nearly all of our laws authorizing emissions of public stocks, refer to the "act to improve the funds and provide for the redemption of the funded debt of this state," and declare that the certificates of stock shall be issued in the manner directed by that act, and it prescribed the form of the certificate, and inserted the phrase payable at the pleasure of the State after a day named, which has universally, hitherto, been held by the whole world, and admitted by the State itself, to be the day of payment. This act was passed in reference to the war debt, and long before any canal stocks were issued.

The same phraseology is believed to be universally inserted in all public stocks issued by the United States, and if the view which I have presented of the obligations of a sovereign state be sound, it is language as strongly obligatory as such a State can properly or usefully employ.

I find myself, however, relieved from the necessity of extending remarks farther upon this point, as a reference to the annual report of the Commissioners of the Canal Fund for the year 1841, Assembly Document No. 4, pages 38 and 39; to the like report for the year 1843, Assembly Document No. 26, page 3, and to the report of the committee of ways and means of the House of Assembly of 1842, Document No. 88, being the report upon which the suspension act of 1842 was predicated, pages 22 and 23, will present a body of authority, a force of argument, and a concurrence of opinion, settling the construction I put upon these certificates, if weight of character, and conceded financial experience and skill, drawn from both the great political parties of the State, can settle it. In those reports the palpable idea is strongly presented, that, under the opposite construction, the outstanding stocks of this State are practically irredeemable, and our present load of debt is to remain perpetually upon the tax payers of the State, in case it shall be the pleasure of each succeeding legislature to direct the means provided for its payment, to some new object of expenditure; a construction which our yeomanry, upon whom taxation always falls most heavily, will not be likely, willingly, to adopt, even where there is reasonable doubt.

Entertaining these views, I am constrained to consider these pledges as resting upon the moneys of the Canal Fund, after the constitutional pledge shall have been finally redeemed on the first day of July next, and that this Legislature cannot, without a direct infraction of them, divert these moneys, or any portion of them, to new objects of expenditure not connected with the protection and preservation of the property of the fund and its revenues, and leave these stocks unpaid at the times fixed for their payment. These are pledges, as it appears to me, above and beyond any provisions contained in the suspension law of 1842, or any provisions which could have been rightfully or properly enacted in that law or any other.

The law authorizing the construction of the Black River canal, passed on the 19th day of April, 1836, contains a pledge upon the Canal Fund in the precise language of that above copied from the Chenango law, with the addition of the words, "or not otherwise appropriated," thus obviating the conflict with prior pledges of a like character, which the provision in the Chenango law produced. The pledge in this case is, that the stocks shall be redeemed by the moneys of the Canal Fund, "which may not be pledged by the Constitution of this State, or otherwise appropriated," and stocks were issued to the amount of $800,000 upon the faith of this pledge, and made redeemable on the 1st day of January, 1851.

An exactly similar pledge to that last recited is found in the law to authorize the construction of the Genesee Valley canal, passed on the 6th day of May, 1836, and $2,000,000 in amount of stocks, made redeemable on the 1st day of January, 1861, were issued under that law.

These again are pledges upon the Canal Fund and its revenues, older than the suspension act of 1842, and cannot, in justice to the holders of these stocks, or without an infraction of the public faith, be considered as released or weakened by any of the provisions of that law. There may be provisions of a like character in other laws authorizing loans for the various canals, as time has not permitted me to examine all that legislation, nor would a reference to other like pledges strengthen the argument which it has been the design of these references to present.

It is not contended that these pledges, resting upon the Canal Fund, interdict the Legislature from making any appropriations from the canal revenues for objects of new expenditure, until all these debts are paid, but simply, that the Legislature cannot, without an infraction of these pledges, equally unjust to the public creditors, and to the tax payers of the State, make such appropriations of the means necessary to meet these debts as they fall due, and at times, and in a manner directly calculated, either to defeat, or to postpone their payment. Hence this objection to this bill, as the moneys it proposes to appropriate, not connected with the preservation and security of existing works, or the improvement of existing navigation, but to progress with new works not expected to be brought into use by the expenditure of the appropriations, are imperiously required to meet the payment of the Chenango stocks falling due on the 1st day of January next, and the payment of which, on that day, in addition to the general obligation of payment arising out of the loan, was made an express pledge upon these moneys by the law authorizing the loan to be made.

In my annual message to the Legislature, I discussed this question in a more general manner, and derived my conclusion that the payment of those portions of the canal debt falling due, should control the resumption of the works upon the unfinished canals from the obligations arising out of the loans, and the duty to preserve the faith of the State involved in those obligations, independently of these special legislative pledges upon the Canal Fund moneys; and I still think that conclusion sound and irresistible, and only illustrated and enforced by these pledges, held out at the time of contracting the debt, to strengthen the confidence of the public creditors, upon the one side, and to give to the people of the State increased assurance of security against taxation, upon the other.

I will now proceed to examine this bill in connexion with the provisions of the law of 1842, called the suspension act, and the subsequent legislation, connected with, and affecting the construction of that law and the financial system and policy established by it.

And here I may as well make myself understood upon one point, in respect to which I have reason to suppose, from the provisions of the bill before me, there must be a difference of opinion between myself and a majority of the members of each branch of the Legislature.

The law of 1842, directs the institution of a Sinking Fund, which, it is assumed, would extinguish the then existing canal debt, in a period of twenty-two and an half years, as I suppose from the close of the fiscal year 1841, though the precise commencement of the term, within a fraction of a year, cannot be very material. That was the latest period to which the accounts could have been brought up, and calculations for any fraction of the subsequent fiscal year must have been mostly based upon very uncertain estimates. The point of difference, however, to which I allude, is this: The bill under consideration appears to me to assume, and to have been framed and supported upon the hypothesis that the policy, if not the express provisions of the law of 1842, requires that the canal debt should be paid in a period of twenty-two and an half years, and that it should not be paid in any shorter period, or at a rate, during any portion of that period, any more rapid than the regular wearing away of the Sinking Fund established by that act, would extinguish it. Hence, as I have supposed, the assumption, upon which the first section of the bill under consideration seems to have been framed, that all the canal revenues, not required to constitute that Sinking Fund, and meet the other payments expressly directed by that act, may be rightfully considered by the Legislature as a surplus in its hands, subject to any appropriation it may choose to make, irrespective of any provisions of law existing prior to the passage of the act of 1842, or any obligations of the debt created by such previous legislation.

From any such construction of the provisions or policy of the law referred to, I am compelled wholly to dissent. I can find no enactments in that law, which, in my judgment, either in terms, or by fair construction, or implication, release in any degree, or to any extent, either the general obligations to pay every portion of the debt, at the day originally stipulated, or the specific pledges imposed upon the Canal Fund moneys, which I have before recited. Neither have I been able to find anything in the policy marked out by this law, or indicated in the able report of the committee from which it emanated, and upon which it was based, to countenance at all the idea that the object, or the policy, was to postpone the payment of any portion of the debt, other than the temporary and unfunded, and to a great extent, unliquidated debt, then found to exist, and for the payment of which, then, or as it would fall due, no means were within the power of the State. So far from this, the principal labors of the committee are shown by the report to have been to devise the ways and means to meet the immediate and pressing demands upon the Canal Fund, for the interest upon the debt and the spring repairs to the canals; to place the temporary debt in a condition satisfactory to the public creditors, and manageable by the State, and to meet the payments of these very portions of the debt to fall due in 1845 and 1846. On page 23 of the report, the committee, referring to the annual report of the Commissioners of the Canal Fund of 1841, before alluded to, say that they "agree with the Commissioners in their conclusion, that there is no alternative but to provide for the payment of these certificates, at the times when they are redeemable." And on page 36 they say, "until after 1845, therefore, there will be no canal surplus to be employed as a fund or means to pay interest on new canal loans." Again, on pages 42 and 43, the committee make a detailed statement of their anticipations of means to redeem these stocks, and close with this remark: "This would leave the sum of $1,338,734.59 to be provided for the canals before or in 1845, after applying all available present means, the canal half mill tax, all surpluses from prospective canal tolls to accrue up to and in 1845, and after borrowing, as far as it can safely be done, from the specific funds."

After this view of the policy, which the committee thus expressly and repeatedly avows and advocates, as the policy to be established by the suspension act of 1842, it is impossible for me to conclude that that policy was a postponement of the payment of the canal debt, for the purpose of a resumption of the public works. The act itself bears upon its face no evidence, to my mind, of any such policy intended by that Legislature, and the report of the committee, upon which the law was based, advocates throughout a directly contrary policy.

As an additional evidence that no such policy could have been intended by the authors of this law, the act itself pledges the very revenues appropriated by the bill under consideration, if they can otherwise be considered surplus revenues, for the redemption of the stock to be issued under it. The seventh section of the act is in these words:

"§ 7. The loans herein before authorized to be made by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, may, in the scrip to be issued therefor, be declared to be a charge on any money to be raised for canal purposes under the first section of this act, and on any surplus of canal revenue, after the payment of the interest on the canal debt and all expenses for current damages, superintendence, repairs and collections, on all the State canals."

This is a provision totally inconsistent with the idea that the Sinking Fund provided for in the act, was intended to be the sole reliance for the payment of the debt, and that any surplus of revenues, beyond the annual contributions to that Sinking Fund, and the other payments expressly required by the act, was to be expended upon the new works, regardless of the pre-existing obligations of the debt.

Again. It is assumed on all hands, that the policy and the provisions of the act of 1842, were to pay the canal debt in a period of twenty-two and an half years, even if its provisions, and its Sinking Fund, are only to be regarded in reference to that payment. Three years of that time, not to speak of fractions, have already passed away; and what has been the action of the law,—of its Sinking Fund, and of the subsequent legislation,—upon the debt to be paid.

The committee of ways and means, in their report before alluded to, estimated the amount of the canal debt, at the time of the passage of the suspension act of 1842, at $19,056,466.22. This the committee made up in the following manner, namely:

|   |                        |
|---|------------------------|
| They found existing a stock debt of.....  | $16,443,199 22        |
| They estimated the amount of temporary loans, not funded, at.....               | 1,613,267 00           |
| They estimated the arrearages due to contractors, for land damages, &c. at..... | 1,000,000 00           |
| Making the total assumed of.....  | $19,056,466 22 |

The committee are supposed to have based their anticipations upon this amount of debt, and yet, conscious of the uncertainty of their estimates, and of the vagueness of their information as to the outstanding and unliquidated claims in the bill they reported, (the suspension act,) they authorized loans for canal purposes to the amount of $4,204,741.52, in six several specific sums, confined to specific objects of expenditure. Portions of some of these specific appropriations were not required for the objects for which the funds were set apart, but others were found to demand much more than the appropriations; and by two several laws, passed in the following year, 1843, (chapters 48 and 240 of the Laws of 1843,) a transfer of the money to different objects was authorized, and the stocks were directed to be issued, so that the canal debt has been increased to the full extent authorized by the suspension act of 1843. Beyond this, the act, chapter 314 of the Laws of 1844, authorized a further loan of $900,000; the whole of which stock, except $45,000, has been issued, and now constitutes a part of the canal stock debt; and I am informed by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, that the $45,000 will be required in the course of the current year, and that in all probability, a still further loan will become necessary to meet the objects for which the $900,000 were appropriated.

A statement of the present canal stock debt will, therefore, stand as follows:

Leaving a present balance of canal stock debt of... $20,550,197 54

It will be recollected that funds had been set apart, long before the year 1842, for the entire payment and redemption of the old Erie and Champlain canal debt. At the time of the passage of the act of 1842, it was found that a very large proportion of those moneys having been deposited in banks as a mode of investment, had become unavailable by reason of the inability of the banks to pay the deposits. The report of the committee of ways and means so frequently heretofore referred to, at pages 23, 24 and 25, will give the condition of these funds at the time of the passage of the law of 1842, and one of the specific loans authorized by that act was the sum of $400,000 (subdivision 6, of § 5,) to supply any deficiency which might prove to exist in them, by reason of the unavailable condition of portions of the moneys. The amount of the old Erie and Champlain canal debt, then unredeemed, was $2,010,679.99, as stated in the report of the committee, page 22. The amount of that debt now outstanding and unredeemed, as ascertained from the Comptroller's books, is $1,016,542.31, showing that $994,137.68 of this old debt has been redeemed since the passage of the suspension law. To make these redemptions, and secure the amount of funds necessary to extinguish this debt, on the first day of July next, but $100,000.00 have been used out of the appropriation of $400,000.00 made by the act of 1842, the remaining $300,000.00 of this appropriation having been transferred by the act, chapter 240, of the Laws of 1843, to the payment of arrearages to contractors and other demands against the canals.

The redemption of the $15,000.00 of the Chemung canal stock was made under the provisions of the act chapter 183, of the Laws of 1842, and of $6,000.00 of Erie Canal Enlargement stock, under the provisions of the act chap. 308, of the Laws of 1842, both laws merely permitting contractors to surrender stocks, which had been issued to them in payment under their contracts, but which were below par, and to be paid under the provisions of the suspension act of 1842, either in money, or in a stock bearing a higher rate of interest. This operation, therefore, was only a redemption of stock in form, and did not diminish the debt of the State, one dollar, but in effect increased it by increasing the amount of stock to be issued under the suspension act bearing a higher rate of interest.

Hence the conclusion is reached that not one dollar of the State stock debt has been in fact paid off, and the stock redeemed, since the passage of the suspension law of 1842, except the $994,137.68 of the old Erie and Champlain canal debt, and that the whole of that amount, save $100,000, has been paid from funds on hand and set apart for that object at the time of the passage of that law.

This balance of debt is wholly unprovided for by any present means, after applying all the surplus means of the Canal Fund for the three years, and the $278,197.56, derived from the direct tax upon the people, a balance $1,896,904.41 larger than the whole stock debt when the suspension act was passed, and $1,294,317.60 more than the committee of ways and means, who reported that law, estimated the entire amount of the canal debt to be at that time, exclusive of the balance of the Erie and Champlain canal debt.

The large amount of unavailable means above mentioned, and applicable to the payment of this balance of debt, consists mostly of deposits made with banks which have failed, or are in a deeply embarrassed condition, and unable to make present payment. The Safety Fund is supposed to be liable, in cases where the banks have absolutely failed; and a law of the present session, authorizing the emission of a stock to anticipate the contributions by the banks to this fund, it is believed, may give availability to a considerable portion of these means, within the present fiscal year. It is probable that this process may be perfected in time to bring means from this source to meet the balance of the debt which will become due and payable on the 1st of July next, and that a balance may be returned to the Canal Fund, before the close of the fiscal year, more than sufficient to repay to it the $100,000 borrowed under the law of 1842 to meet the redemption of this debt.

Such is the present condition of the canal debt, without taking $197,000 from its revenues to commence anew the public works, and the facts stated, as it appears to me, conclusively show that the operations of the law of 1842 have not yet been able to commence a reduction of this debt, and only to retard its increase, although very nearly one 7th part of the whole twenty-two and an half years have expired, and about one-seventh part of the debt ought to have been paid, or the means to pay that portion of it ought to have been accumulated. An application of all those means, as has been before seen, leaves a balance of debt all but as large as the whole estimate of debt, funded and unfunded, when that law was passed. The spirit and intention of that act was certainly to extinguish finally this debt in the twenty-two and an half years; and if that spirit and intention be observed, is there a surplus of the canal revenues now on hand authorizing a recommencement of the work upon the unfinished canals? To me no proposition seems more clear than that there is no such surplus; but, on the contrary, that there is no prospect of an extinguishment of the debt within the time limited, even with the application of the whole canal revenues, unless the regular annual increases of the debt itself can be arrested. Certainly, then, I cannot believe that the express provisions or the spirit of the law will be observed, in a diversion of any portion of these revenues to new works, in the present state of the debt and liabilities of the fund.

If the whole amount of the unavailable funds mentioned above could be made available by January next, (a result not to be expected,) there would be a balance from that source, after completing the payment of the old debt, of..... 434,231 40

This being applied, would still leave a balance of... $734,762 66

This is a sum larger by $163,475.15 than the whole surplus of the canal revenues of the last year, over and above the current payments charged upon them, independently of any payment to the Sinking Fund and those revenues for the last year, largely exceeded any former example. Here, therefore, is certainly no surplus on hand, and none to be anticipated at the close of the present fiscal year, unless the payment and redemption of this stock is to be deferred, for the purpose of applying our means to new expenditures.

In my annual message to the Legislature, I assumed that the amount of interest actually paid upon the canal debt during the fiscal year ending on the 30th of September, 1844, as reported to me from the Canal Department, was the true sum by which to determine the amount to be contributed to the sinking fund established by the act of 1842, and that one-third of that sum was the measure of that contribution. Comparing the revenues of that fiscal year with the expenses, including this contribution thus ascertained, I arrived at a surplus of the revenues for that year, of $197,179.39. In a subsequent paragraph it was stated that the revenues for 1842 and 1843 were deficient in contributions to the Sinking Fund; but added that including the amount received from the tax, the interest upon the sums contributed to the fund, and the whole surplus of that year, the aggregate would be more than one third of the interest upon the debt, for the three years.

Those remarks will show what was the fact, that I was not very conversant with the institution and management of a Sinking Fund; that I had not regarded with sufficient care the provision of the act of 1842 upon that point, and that I had not examined at all a subsequent law, giving a construction to that provision in an important particular. From the sum assumed as an existing surplus in the bill under consideration, I cannot but apprehend that I may have been unintentionally instrumental in misleading the Legislature, or some of its members, upon this point. If that be so, while I most deeply regret the fact, it is the more imperiously my duty now to correct the erroneous impressions.

Upon inquiry, I find that to establish the Sinking Fund provided for, it was held necessary to take the debt at some specified period, and that the design was to select the period when it was believed to have reached its maximum; to ascertain the actual interest for one year upon the stocks composing that debt, according to the several rates of interest upon the different descriptions of stock, the one third of which aggregate amount of interest would be the fixed sum to be contributed from the surplus of canal revenues, for each of the twenty-two and an half years of the term; that, according to the provisions of the law, these annual contributions were to be made from the canal revenues proper, and not from the avails of the tax, and that the interests annually accruing upon the capital of the Sinking Fund, could not properly be included to determine whether the limit of contributions to the fund for any given term of years, had been reached. Careful examination has satisfied me that these points have been correctly determined, and that another point, namely, that any deficiency in these revenues for any given year, to make the required contribution of the fixed sum to this fund, must be supplied by the first accruing surplus of a subsequent year, has also been correctly decided. A moment's reflection will satisfy every mind that a Sinking Fund, to accomplish the payment of a given debt in a given period, must be supplied and its accumulations sustained with mathematical regularity and precision. In reference to this case, the last Legislature, by § 4 of the act chap. 314, of the Laws of 1844, have put an end to dispute as to the construction to be given to the act of 1842, in this respect, by directing that the contributions to this Sinking Fund from the surplus of canal revenues over and above the current expenses charged upon them, shall be such as will pay the debt in twenty-two and an half years from the passage of the act of 1842, and that any deficiencies in the Sinking Fund for previous years shall be supplied from such surplus revenues. These points being established, it will be easy to see whether any surplus in fact remains, after complying with the requirements of this law.

At the period selected for the establishment of this Sinking Fund, the amount of the debt was $20,710,335.22, and the actual interest for one year upon the stocks which composed it, was $1,127,728.16. The one-third of this interest is the fixed sum which the law requires should be annually contributed to compose the capital of the Sinking Fund to be established, which third of the interest amounts to $375,909.38. Three times this amount is the sum which the canal revenues should have contributed for the three fiscal years, 1842, 1843, and 1844, the one equal third at the close of each year, and which would have made the capital of the fund on the 30th day of September, 1844, exclusive of any accumulations of interest upon that capital, amount to..... $1,127,728 14

The actual contributions to this fund from the canal revenues for the three years, have been as follows:

For the year 1842, being the whole sur-

Leaving a deficiency of contributions for the three years to meet the positive requirements of this law, taking capital alone into consideration, of... $232,183 93

This carries to the Sinking Fund the whole surplus of the last year, including the 197,000 appropriated by the bill under consideration, and yet the express provisions and requirements of the suspension act of 1842, are not complied with by the large sum above named.

And still this sum is too small. The mere contributions of capital to the Sinking Fund will not enable it to wear out the debt. The regular annual accumulations of interest upon that capital must be added to the principal at the close of each year, and thus form a new and enlarged capital again to accumulate interest for the subsequent year; and where deficiencies exist in the contribution of the fixed sum to the capital in any given year, the interest which should have accumulated upon the deficient capital, for the time it is withheld, must be as faithfully supplied as the capital itself, or the power of the fund is impaired, and the payments required from it cannot be made.

Time has not enabled me to bring up the castings of interest in this case, nor have I deemed it material to do so, as enough is shown to put at rest the possible existence of the surplus assumed, and appropriated by the bill now submitted to me. On the contrary, the deficiencies in the capital of this Sinking Fund are now large, and the additions of the deficient interests would swell the sum of deficient revenue by a number of thousands of dollars.

Still another lien rests upon our surplus canal revenues, which must be met before any portion of those revenues can be diverted from the canal debt, if the faith of the State to the public creditors and to its tax paying citizens is to be preserved.

The law, chapter 314 of 1844, before referred to, authorizes a new debt, imposes a new tax, and institutes a new Sinking Fund to redeem the debt it creates. The first section authorizes a loan beyond the provisions of the act of 1842, of $900,000. The third section imposes a tax of one tenth of a mill on the dollar of the valuation of real and personal estate within the State, for the payment of the interest, and the reimbursement of the principal of this loan. The fourth section provides for establishing a Sinking Fund in aid of the tax, and for its discontinuance when the condition of the canal revenues shall permit. The provision is, that all the requirements of the act of 1842 shall be complied with by payments from the canal revenues, including all deficiencies in the payments of previous years to the Sinking Fund established under that act, and that any surplus which may remain "shall in each year be reserved by the Commissioners of the Canal Fund, and kept and sacredly devoted and applied as a Sinking Fund, to an amount in each year sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues, and to purchase in or to pay off within eighteen years the principal of the loans authorized by the first section of this act. And whenever the nett surplus of canal revenues, exclusive of the one-half of mill tax, appropriated to canal purposes, and beyond the charges thereon, as hereinbefore specified, shall contribute to the Sinking Fund provided by this act, a sum sufficient, if paid each year, to meet the interest as it accrues, and redeem the principal of the loans authorized by this act, with any arrearages not contributed by the tax imposed by this act, within the period of eighteen years above limited for the payment thereof, the tax authorized by this act shall cease," etc.

Thus precise and specific is this last pledge resting upon the surplus revenues of the canals, which is wholly and entirely disregarded by the bill under consideration. Upon the preservation of this pledge depends the duration of the tax imposed by the law upon all the persons and all the property of the State, and surely the Legislature has not designedly, but inadvertently, proposed its violation and virtual repeal in the passage of the bill I am now called upon to approve.

In the establishment of the Sinking Fund under the act of 1842, as before related, that portion of the canal debt contracted under this act is carefully excluded, and the $20,710,335.22 taken as the debt which constitutes the measure of that Sinking Fund, does not embrace it. This new debt is, as the language and spirit of the act requires, reserved to be made the basis of this new Sinking Fund.

It now amounts to $855,000, and the remaining $45,000 will be required, and will be added in the course of the present fiscal year.

No account has as yet been formally opened with this second Sinking Fund, because, as has been before seen, no surplus of canal revenues applicable to it has yet been yielded from those revenues, the requirements of the act of 1842, and its Sinking Fund, calling for all, and more than all, of that surplus, beyond the current annual charges upon the revenues. Surely until the demands of this pledge can be met, and this tax discontinued, there cannot be said to be a canal surplus applicable to a recommencement of the public works.

These are my objections to the bill under consideration, too hastily to be briefly stated, or stated as clearly as I could desire, though I hope in a manner to be understood by the Legislature, and by our common constituents.

I cannot yield my approbation to the bill,

Because in my judgment express pledges contained in the laws authorizing loans for the public works, now falling due and becoming payable, imperiously require that the moneys it appropriates to be expended upon new works, should be applied to the extinguishment of the debts created by those loans :

Because I think the policy involved in the passage of the bill, that of postponing the payment of the existing debt as it shall fall due, that we may use the funds for a resumption of the public works, is a direct violation of the spirit and intention of the suspension law of 1842, and unwise and impolitic in reference to the true interests of the people of the whole State :

Because the facts set forth in relation to the present condition and amount of the canal debt, appear to me to show that the effect of the operation of the law of 1842 upon the debt, influenced as it has been by subsequent legislation, has not been such as to offer any promise of a payment of the debt, in the period of twenty-two and an half years, in case the public works shall be now resumed, and portions of the canal revenues diverted from the payment of the debt to be expended in their prosecution :

Because the provisions of the bill appear to me, upon a more careful examination, directly to conflict with the positive requirements of the act of 1842, and to assume as a surplus those moneys, which must be contributed to the Sinking Fund directed to be established by that act, if its enactments are to be obeyed :

And because the provisions and pledges of the act, chapter 314 of 1844, are expressly violated and disregarded by the appropriation contained in the first section of the bill.

I deem it not improper to add a remark in reference to the economy of the appropriation proposed by this bill. A careful enquiry of the officers who have the charge of the unfinished canals, informs me that from $5,000 to $8,000 is the utmost amount which can be economically, or profitably, expended in the security and preservation of the unfinished and unused works and materials, upon the Genesee Valley canal, and that $1,700, or $1,800, is the largest sum required for the same purposes, upon the Black River canal. This would leave, of the appropriation, from $42,000 to $45,000, to be expended in construction, upon the former canal, and from $38,000 to $39,000, upon the latter. I cannot convince myself that the expenditure of these sums, upon works so far from completion, including the array of preparation, which would necessarily be required in the re-engagement of engineers, the formal lettings for new contracts, the collection of hands and supplies, and the like, to terminate again when means so limited should be consumed, can be economically made; and I will not assume that the object has been, in any quarter, by this small beginning, to reopen to a second trial the unsupported and unsustained credit of the State, to struggle with expenditures of this character, and sustain the load of our present almost literally undiminished debt. In an economical view of the subject alone, therefore, separate from the many obligations resting upon us to make a different application of these means, these portions of the appropriation would be very objectionable, in my judgment; but having found so many reasons of principle, and of public faith, which force me to interpose objections, I merely mention this point, as one worthy of the consideration of the Legislature, and deeply interesting to our constituents.

The act, chap. 278, of the Laws of 1844, provided a fund for the protection and preservation of these works and materials, and one which some suggest might be adequate to those objects. There are, as I am informed, balances of money realized under that act, applicable to this description of expenditure upon both these canals; but in the opinion of the Canal Commissioners small appropriations, not to exceed the sums I have named above, including the unexpended balances, may be necessary to complete the work of security and protection.

I do not see occasion to remark upon the provisions of this bill, after the first section, as I discover nothing in them which would prevent my approval of the law. The enactments of the fourth section are not so distinct and clear as would be desirable in legal provisions, and there might be some difficulty, under circumstances which might arise in determining how much money is actually appropriated, or how the $197,000 are to be paid; but as I see nothing necessarily objectionable in principle in these enactments, I pass them over with this notice.

Independently of the great objections of principle which have been urged against the passage of this bill, I am forced to consider the present a most unfortunate time to introduce the change of policy it proposes. The embarrassments upon individuals and sections of the State and the direct losses to the public consequent upon a sudden suspension of the public works, have not yet been fully ascertained and measured, in relation to the suspension of 1842. Much of the time of each Legislature subsequent to that of 1842, has been consumed in the consideration of grievances and claims growing out of that suspension, and bills are, and have been, before this Legislature, containing provisions in favor of such claims which would more than exhaust any canal surplus assumed to exist by the bill under consideration. Under such circumstances, to resume these works upon such slender means as those proposed to be applied to the resumption, must be to invite almost immediately, a second suspension with all its comparative disappointments and embarrassments to individuals and interested sections of the State, and all its losses to the public ; or it must be to lay the foundation for an open abandonment of the sound, debt-paying policy of 1842, for that of a general recommencement of works of internal improvement, relying upon the unaided and already heavily tasked credit of the State for the means. If any one hopes to be able to preserve a middle line between these two courses, he hopes against experience and the natural operations of cause and effect. Payment of the debt at the day, and in strict conformity with the pledges of the public faith, must guide and control our legislation, or open expenditure irrespective of the redemption of the debt will control it. He who supposes the public works can be resumed, and their prosecution confined to the expenditure of such annual surpluses as this bill assumes and appropriates, has turned his attention much too superficially to the history of our own legislation upon the subject of public expenditures of this character, and has looked at the present condition of the other heavily indebted States of the Union, and the causes which have conspired to bring them to that condition, without the instruction which those lessons should impart. That middle line cannot be preserved. If payment of the debt is to govern our policy, a substantial, faithful adherence to that policy, a preservation of the public faith, and redemption of the public obligations, will alone inspire public confidence. If a resumption of the public works is to be the policy, a healthful and vigorous prosecution of those works alone, will, as it should, content our constituents ; and any attempt to preserve a feeble and sickly and inefficient adherence to both these courses at the same time, will prove an entire failure.

Another reason why I consider the present an unfortunate time to make this change of policy, is the evidence before us of a determinate disposition in the public mind to remodel our constitutional system, in reference to expenditures of this description. Ever since the prostration of the credit of the State in 1841, and the consequent suspension of the public works and establishment of the financial system adopted by the Legislature of 1842, the attention of our people has been drawn to the necessity of some further constitutional protection against the dangers of enduring debt and perpetual taxation. Extended discussion for two years resulted in action by the last Legislature, originating and submitting to the people, previous to the last election, specific amendments to the Constitution, taking two most important positions in reference to the further increase of our public debt for these objects, namely :

1. That no debt should hereafter be contracted for expenditures like these, until the law authorizing the loan should have been submitted to the people, and expressly approved by them, by their direct votes at the polls, and

2. That no law submitted to the people for their appropriation, should contain authority to make loans for but a single work or object of expenditure, and should contain irrepealable provisions for a Sinking Fund to meet the interest and pay off the principal of the debt, within a specified period.

This legislature, elected with reference to these provisions as amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State, has expressed its sense, the one house by the constitutional vote of two-thirds, and the other by a majority in their favor, thus reflecting most truly, as I verily believe, the deliberate sense and wish of a majority of the people of the State. The propositions, however, having failed to receive the constitutional vote of two-thirds in the Assembly, cannot be submitted to the people, according to the provision contained in the Constitution for its amendment, and have therefore failed. This failure, together with that of other amendments similarly proposed and similarly failing, has secured the passage of a law for the call of a convention of the people of the State to amend the Constitution. That convention, if the call shall be affirmed by the people, as I do not entertain a doubt that it will be, is to be assembled in little more than one year from this day. Then we have every right to expect and believe that a re-organization, in a constitutional form, of our financial system, and of our powers over the use of the public credit, especially as touching the subject of internal improvements, will take place. Now, our condition is peculiarly favorable for such re-organization, be it what it may, as no work is in progress to be injuriously affected, or materially interfered with, by any change which the convention may think wise and safe. Under these circumstances, to resume the public works, make new contracts, and a re-organization for their prosecution under the old financial system which was suspended in 1842, it appears to me would only be to embarrass the convention, or disappoint the contractors, and subject the State to new losses without any promise, with the means possessed and proposed to be used by this bill, of making very material or useful advancement with the works. I must, therefore, for this reason, consider the resumption of these works at this time inopportune and unwise.

The present condition of State credit in Europe, and of the foreign relations of the country, are also considerations not unworthy of careful examination and reflection, as connected with a measure calculated either to continue our present debt, or to produce the necessity of a new if not an enlarged one.

I by no means apprehend a state of war, as a consequence of the present somewhat angry and excited feeling occasionally manifested, and connecting itself with our foreign relations; but that unfriendly discussions may take place, and be somewhat protracted, and that distrusts may be occasioned very unfavorable to State credit abroad, having the effect to return upon the country such investments now held abroad, and giving to any failure on the part of this State to redeem any portion of its stocks on the day they fall due, an importance such a contingency would not deserve, seems to me quite probable. If, in addition to such a failure to pay, we should be seen re-opening our old system of expenditure, without strengthening our sources of revenue, the effect upon our credit might be severe. I have occasion to know that some of the ablest men connected with our moneyed institutions, and from their positions and business, accustomed to observe closely all indications from abroad touching public credits, entertain unfavorable apprehensions in relation to any departure from the safe policy pursued since 1842, while our foreign relations wear their present aspect. I would not, by these remarks, excite the slightest alarm as to an apprehended interruption of the peace of the country, but I must think that these considerations make the passage of this bill ill-timed and inexpedient.

Great as I consider the weight due to these objections, of economy, time and expediency, but for the more grave objections of principle, which I have stated in the former part of this communication, I should not be constrained to interpose my individual opinion, in opposition to that of the majority of the Legislature. The regret I feel at being compelled to do it, under any circumstances, I have not the power to express, and still my most solemn convictions assure me, that I but discharge an imperious constitutional duty, unmixed with, and uninfluenced by, a single personal feeling or interest of which I am conscious. That the consequence of my action is but a call upon the Legislature to reconsider its own, and not a necessary rejection of the bill, is a gratifying reflection; and I am not without hope that the considerations I have presented, imperfect and tedious as that presentation is, may induce the two houses to come to my conclusion, that the bill, in its present shape, and with its present provisions, ought not to pass. If, on the contrary, these considerations shall seem to deserve no weight, and the bill shall pass, notwithstanding the objections, the harm, if any, of this communication, must fall upon myself, where it should rest, if the objections are not well founded. Should neither of these results follow, and the bill fail for a want of the constitutional vote, a majority of both houses continuing to be in its favor, in that case I shall cheerfully submit to the people of the State the decision of the issue which will be formed between myself and the majority of the Legislature, rejoicing in the conviction that the difference of opinion on my part, is unaccompanied by one personal feeling unfriendly to a single individual of that majority, and determined that the decision of our common constituents shall be submitted to by me, in the same spirit in which I have joined the issue.

SILAS WRIGHT.

Thereupon,

The House proceeded to the reconsideration of the said bill, returned by the Governor, entitled "An act in relation to the canals."

Debates were had thereon; when

Mr. Whitney called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question, "Shall this bill become a law, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?" and it was determined in the negative, less than two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit:

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh gave notice that he would, on the morrow, move the suspension of all rules of this house, which may interfere with the introduction and passage of a bill to provide for the reconstruction of the locks on the Crookedlake canal.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act concerning the district attorney of the county of Niagara," with the accompanying amendments.

The said amendments having been read,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to enable the receiver of taxes in the city of New-York, and the comptroller of the said city, to collect the taxes remaining unpaid," with the accompanying amendments.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Wheeler moved that the House concur therein.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Wheeler, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

The Chair announced the select committee appointed in pursuance of the resolution offered by Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee on the judiciary, in relation to the quarantine laws, to consist of Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Comstock and Mr. Hine.

Mr. Morrison gave notice that he would, to-morrow, offer the following resolution, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That the Canal Commissioners be authorised to construct such new locks and other repairs as may be necessary to keep the Crookedlake canal in a navigable condition, not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, to be paid out of any monies belonging to the Canal fund, not otherwise appropriated.

On motion of Mr. C. F. Crosby,

The House then adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1845.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Harrington.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Morrison, the reading of the minutes of yesterday was dispensed with.

The preamble and resolutions of the common council of the city of New-York, relative to the ferries between the said city and the city of Brooklyn, were read, and ordered to be laid on the table.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh, in pursuance of previous notice, moved to suspend the rules preventing the introduction of a bill at this time.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Van Valkenburgh, and it was determined in the affirmative.

In pursuance of previous notice, Mr. Van Valkenburgh asked for and obtained leave to bring in a bill, entitled "An act to provide for the reconstruction of the locks on the Crookedlake canal ;" which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to suspend the rule preventing the third reading of the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh then moved that the said bill be ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A copy of a resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur,) That the tenth joint rule of the Senate and Assembly be so far suspended, as to permit the following bills to be sent by the Senate to the Assembly for concurrence, to wit :

The bill entitled "An act to perfect amendments to the Constitution, in relation to the removal of judicial officers, and the property qualification for office ;" the bill entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a railroad from the Seneca lake to the New-York and Erie railroad in the county of Chemung," and the bill entitled "An act to authorise the construction of a railroad from New-York to Albany."

Mr. M. Brooks moved to lay the said resolution on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. M. Brooks, and it was determined in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. T. R. Lee,

The House proceeded to the consideration of the motion made by him yesterday, to print twenty times the usual number of copies of the message of the Governor, returning the bill entitled "An act in relation to the canals."

Debates were had thereon ; when

Mr. T. R. Lee amended his said motion, by adding thereto the words "and that the said document be sent, by the Clerk of this House, to the clerks of the respective counties, as soon as printed."

Debates were again had ; when

Mr. Jones called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Collins then called for a division of the question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the first clause of the said motion of Mr. T. R. Lee, providing that twenty times the usual number of copies of the message of the Governor, returning the bill entitled "An act in relation to the canals," be printed for the use of the Legislature, and it was determined in the affirmative.

[See Document No. 251.]

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree to the second clause of the said motion of Mr. T. R. Lee, directing the Clerk of this House to send the said document to the clerks of the respective counties, as soon as the same is printed, and it was determined in the negative.

Mr. Hannum, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported, that the committee had examined the bill entitled "An act to provide for the reconstruction of the locks on the Crookedlake canal," and found the same correctly engrossed.

Ordered, That the said bill do have its third reading.

A message from the Senate, with the bills therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had passed the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Port Byron and Savannah Turnpike Road and Bridge Company;" the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Ronkonkama Lake Ice Company;" the bill entitled "An act in relation to the support of the poor in the county of Wayne;" the bill entitled "An act for the further relief of the New-York Eye and Ear Infirmary;" the bill entitled "An act for the publication of the session laws in two newspapers in each county of this State;" the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act incorporating the Long Island Railroad Company,' passed April 24th, 1834;" the bill entitled "An act for the safe keeping, and to provide a time for the distribution of the gospel and school fund monies in the several towns in the county of Onondaga;" the bill entitled "An act in relation to the interment of the dead in the village of Williamsburgh;" the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to confirm the title of certain lands conveyed to Richard Richardson, an alien,' passed April 18th, 1843;" the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Michael Francisco;" the bill entitled "An act for the relief of the devisee of William Vyse, late of the city of New-York, deceased;" the bill entitled "An act declaring a part of the Big Broken-straw creek a public highway;" the bill entitled "An act to authorise the appointment of a supreme court commissioner to reside at Mayville in the county of Chautauque, and for other purposes;" the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a recorder's court in the city of Utica, and for other purposes,' passed May 7th, 1844;" the bill entitled "An act concerning the Congregational Society in the town of Spencer;" the bill entitled "An act concerning the Seneca Turnpike Road Company;" the bill entitled "An act for the reorganization of the almshouse department in the city and county of New-York," and the bill entitled "An act to vest certain powers in the board of supervisors of Sullivan county," severally without amendment.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bills to the Governor.

A message from the Senate, with the bills therein mentioned, was received and read, informing that the Senate had rejected the bill entitled "An act to incorporate the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company," and the bill entitled "An act for the promotion of agricultural science."

Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee on the judiciary, to which was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to authorise the appointment of a supreme court commissioner to reside in the town of Worcester in the county of Otsego;" the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act for the relief of partners and joint debtors,' passed April 18th, 1838;" and the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act authorising the appointment of a supreme court commissioner to reside in the county of Washington, and for other purposes," reported, that the committee had examined the said bills, and saw no reason why the same should not severally be passed into laws.

Ordered, That the said bills do have their third reading.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of a police justice in the village of Saratoga-Springs," with the accompanying amendments.

The said amendments having been read,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their said amendments.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to incorporate the trustees for the management and care of the fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of New-York," with the accompanying amendments.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have passed the same without amendment.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, on the bill entitled "An act to provide for the payment of certain expenses of government;" and after some time spent thereon, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Morrison, from the said committee, reported, that the committee had gone through the said bill, made sundry amendments thereto, and agreed to the same; which report was agreed to by the house, and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. M'Carthy offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the Assembly pay, out of the contingent fund thereof, to Henry Bradt, George Kilburn and Francis Masterson, the sum of two dollars per day each, for their services in making fires, etc.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A copy of a resolution of the Senate was received and read, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, (if the Assembly concur.) That the time fixed for the adjournment of the Legislature be extended to four o'clock this day.

Mr. Russell moved to amend the said resolution, so as to extend the time of adjournment to nine o'clock this evening.

Mr. Oakley called for the previous question.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would second the call for the previous question, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" and it was determined in the affirmative.

Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A message from the Senate was received and read, requesting the concurrence of the Assembly to the bill therewith delivered, entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a railroad from the head of Seneca lake, to the New-York and Erie railroad in the county of Steuben."

Mr. Russell moved to suspend the rules, so as to permit the reception of the said bill.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Russell, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The said bill was then read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read a second time, and ordered to have its third reading.

Mr. Russell offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That the tenth joint rule be suspended, to allow the transmission to the Senate of the bill to provide for the reconstruction of the locks on the Crookedlake canal.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said resolution to the Senate, and request their concurrence in the same.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to extend for a limited period the charter of the Bank of Rochester," with the accompanying amendments.

The said amendments having been read,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, as follows, to wit :

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

A message from the Senate was received and read, requesting the concurrence of the Assembly to the bill therewith delivered, entitled "An act to authorise the construction of a railroad from New-York to Albany."

Mr. M. Brooks moved to lay the said bill on the table.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. M. Brooks, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The following bills were returned from the Senate, to wit :

The bill entitled "An act to extend for a limited period the charter of the Commercial Bank of Albany, and to amend the same ;" the bill entitled "An act relative to the city of Brooklyn ;" the bill entitled "An act to improve the militia of this State ;" the bill entitled "An act for the relief of Calvin T. Chamberlain ;" the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act for the relief of William Dunn,' passed April 17th, 1844 ;" the bill entitled "An act to extend for a limited period the charter of the Bank of Rochester," and the bill entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the village of Bath in the county of Steuben.'"

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bills to the Governor.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Bailey offered for the consideration of the House a resolution, in the words following, to wit :

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House forward immediately to the county clerks of the several counties of this State, the extra numbers of the veto message from the Governor, for the use of the members, officers and deputy clerks of the House, in the same manner that the session laws are forwarded ; and that the expense be defrayed out of the contingent fund of the house.

Mr. Bevens moved to amend the said resolution, by striking out the words " and that the expense be defrayed out of the contingent fund of the house."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to the said motion of Mr. Bevens, and it was determined in the negative.

Mr. Speaker then put the question whether the House would agree to the said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing that they had passed the bill therewith returned, entitled "An act to provide for the payment of certain expenses of government," with the accompanying amendments.

The said bill and amendments were read ; and the amendments having been again read,

Resolved, That the Assembly do concur with the Senate in their amendments to the said bill.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the said bill and amendments to the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly have concurred in the said amendments, and amended the bill accordingly.

A message from the Governor was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

SILAS WRIGHT.

The bill entitled "An act to provide for the payment of certain expenses of government," was returned from the Senate.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver the said bill to the Governor.

On motion of Mr. T. R. Lee,

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to wait upon the Governor, and inform him that unless he has further business to lay before the Legislature, this House is ready to adjourn.

The Chair appointed Mr. T. R. Lee and Mr. Worden to be the said committee.

On motion of Mr. Niven,

Resolved, That a committee of two be appointed to wait upon the Senate, and inform them that this House is ready to adjourn.

The Chair appointed Mr. Niven and Mr. Wheeler to be the said committee.

A message from the Governor was received and read, in the words following, to wit :

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
Albany, May 14, 1845. }

TO THE ASSEMBLY.

I have this day approved and signed the bill entitled "An act to provide for the payment of certain expenses of government."

SILAS WRIGHT.

Mr. Niven, from the committee appointed to wait upon the Senate, and inform them that the Assembly were ready to adjourn, reported, that the committee had discharged that duty.

A message from the Senate, delivered by Mr. Bartow and Mr. Backus, was received, informing that the Senate were ready to adjourn.

Mr. T. R. Lee, from the committee appointed to wait upon the Governor, and inform him that unless he had further business to lay before the Legislature, the Assembly were ready to adjourn, reported, that the committee had waited upon the Governor, and that his Excellency had been pleased to say that he had no further communications to make to the Legislature.

On motion of Mr. Worden,

Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this House be, and they are hereby tendered to the Honorable the Speaker, for the fair, dignified and impartial manner he has presided over its deliberations during the session now about to be terminated.

The minutes of the day were then read and approved ; after which, the Speaker addressed the House as follows, to wit :

GENTLEMEN,

For the gratifying expressions of kindness and approbation contained in the resolution adopted by you, I return you my heartfelt acknowledgments. If I have been able to discharge the duties of this station in a manner acceptable to you, I am conscious it has been owing in a great degree to the courtesy with which I have ever been treated by every member of the House. If, in the performance of my duties, errors have been committed, or if decisions may at times have appeared harsh or unjust towards any member, I trust they will be attributed to the circumstances under which the duties of the chair are discharged, and that they will occasion no doubt of that consideration and regard which I entertain for every member of the Assembly.

The session which is now terminated, has been rendered interesting by the importance of the subjects which have engaged our attention. Measures affecting the numerous and varied interests of our great State have elicited much discussion. Among the most prominent of them, have been the different propositions for amending our Constitution, and the bill recommending a Convention to revise that instrument. It is gratifying, that notwithstanding the great interest of these measures, and the earnest and protracted debates they have occasioned, and although these discussions have followed so closely upon an excited political contest, yet they have been conducted with that courtesy which should ever characterize the representatives of the people. Whatever differences of opinion may have existed among us with regard to them, we can all unite in the hope that they may prove beneficial to that constituency which we have honestly endeavored to serve.

The period has now arrived when our association as members of this house must terminate. Some may meet occasionally or accidentally hereafter : with most, this is a final separation. But, gentlemen, I can assure you that the kindness which I have always experienced from each member of this house will ever be held in grateful remembrance by me. I shall always cherish the fervent hope that all of you may enjoy, both here and hereafter, all the blessings which a beneficent God can bestow upon you.

I bid you, gentlemen, an affectionate farewell.

The Speaker then adjourned the House sine die.

JAMES R. ROSE, Clerk.
